Youth and Chemical Whisky.

Surprise for Mr. Ford.

1,000 Marriages Analyzed.

The 10 Greatest.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

NEWS OF A strange kind comes with prohibition that was to "end drunkenness and hard times and empty the prisons."

In New York a young girl of unusual beauty is found dead, and, according to the police and district attorney, murdered, her body battered, her head held under the water until she died.

Her stepfather says: "Yes, she drank. she was an adult," implying that adults now drink, including girls.

The stepfather proudly said that he provided for her "safe" drinking by giving her a flask and always filling it with whisky chemically tested. Young girls that drink whisky "because they are adults" and that receive from members of their family whisky chemically manufactured to avoid bootleg whisky that sometimes kills, represent something new in our social system.

A SURPRISE for Henry Ford, if anything could surprise him, comes from Russia.

He brought scores of young Russian engineers to Detroit, gave them room in his plant, taught them all about his business. He sent machinery for making automobiles and tractors to Russia, sent engineers to show Russia how to build factories, and how to use the machinery.

And what does Russia do? Russia is selling Fordson tractors, made in Russia, at $100 below the Ford price. That is "dumping" with a vengeance.

It will amuse Henry Ford, after the first shock, for he doesn't need that business, and has always taken the stand that whoever can produce the best product for the least money should have the business.

He will wonder how they do it. The Ford reports for 1930 showed earnings of a little over $40,000,000, less than $40 for each unit, a profit much smaller than that made by dealers. If Mr. Ford had to cut $100 from each unit, he would lose $60 per unit, and that wouldn't pay.

The Russians seem to be a queerly efficient people.

DR. ROBERT DICKINSON, of New York, tells the American Medical Association that analysis of the married lives of "1,000 cultured American women" shows that 50 per cent of the women are unhappy, and, in most cases, "due to sexual conditions."

"Taboos and fears, implanted by religious and educational training in the women, cause this trouble."

DULL HUSBANDS that take married life and a wife for granted, also cause trouble. Montaigne, in one of his essays, quotes the advice of a wise old woman of the time of Charlemagne, who told a young bride:

"Put off your modesty with your petticoat."

Petticoats have disappeared from female equipment, but taboos, based on false modesty, still remain.

THE ARISOMEONIC Society will select "the 10 greatest men in America" and seal up in a vault "their visible talking images" imprinted on rolls of celluloid. Their fingerprints, autographs, family trees, medical history and biological data will all be found when the vault is opened, 100 years hence.

The 10 "greatest" will be actually seen and heard talking. By that time the world will know who the "greatest 10 men in the United States" really were in 1931 and will ask "Who in heaven's name selected these 10?"

MR. SELFRIDGE, who worked for Marshall Field in Chicago and now works for himself in London, with great success, offers five prizes, $500 each, to British journalists. The best piece of foreign news, best "scoop," which means exclusive news, best descriptive reporting, best article on industry, commerce or finance, the most interesting photograph will get the prizes.

NOT A BAD selection, but the best article on industry, commerce or finance might be thrown out, and a prize for the BEST NEW IDEA substituted for it.

New ideas have made newspapermen worthwhile, for instance, Bennett, Dana, Pulitzer, Hearst.

"THE PROBLEM of Negro labor" worries Washington. Many whites, unable to find work at their usual occupations, are doing work generally done by colored laborers. The Department of Labor is told "the economic structure of the entire Negro race is in an alarming state of disrepair."

Many Negroes are crowding into big cities, making bad conditions worse. It would seem that a little actual planning to "organize industry" would be useful, and it not be a mere imitation of Russia.

THE OHIO METEOR, that knocked down telegraph poles and trees, and broke windows in houses, had not been dug up yesterday. Some wonder why it did not set fire to houses nearby, but need not wonder.

The meteor becomes red hot, on the outside when it first strikes our atmosphere. But as it falls through miles of the thin upper air and strikes the intensely cold stratosphere, more than a hundred degrees below zero, it cools off.

In other words, a meteorite, striking the earth after coming through the atmosphere, is like

CALLS PLAN DEPRESSION REMEDY

Hearst Proposal Would Spur Immediate Recovery in Business, Senator Says

WASHINGTON, June 12. Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, today indorsed strongly the William Randolph Hearst prosperity loan project as a means to restore prosperity. Mr. Hearst proposed the immediate expenditure of a government loan of $5,000,000,000 for employment at prosperity wage rates on federal construction. Senator Davis' statement, exclusive to the Sun-Telegraph, follows:

By JAMES J. DAVIS, Senator From Pennsylvania

Sound plans which assure the stabilization of our entire economic structure merit my approval. Mr. William Randolph Hearst appears to have conceived such a plan in his proposal to establish a five billion dollar sinking fund for the immediate promotion of urgently-needed federal construction projects. His plan seems to possess logical vision and substantial foundation.

Senator Davis

Oddly enough, it echoes many of the essential points of a similar plan which I conceived and discussed with several of my friends, who are prominent in the fields of agriculture, labor, finance and industry. One of them, a noted banker in Pittsburgh, said:

"The most practicable way for the United States to come out of the economic depression, is through the help of gigantic construction and public work programs inaugurated by our nation, our states and our cities."

Mr. Hearst's plan is in harmony with this sage and expert opinion. The creation of a five billion dollar sinking fund by the federal government would permit the immediate commencement of a vast program of urgently-needed federal construction projects, which would provide employment opportunities for most of our jobless men and women, and which would do much to banish the menace of a dole.

The start of such a vast program of public work by the federal government would have an immediate inspirational and practical effect on our entire economic structure. The wheels of industry would be primed for a new period of profitable production, with plenty of work for those it employs. Commerce would be spurred to renewed heights of activity, and finance would be encouraged to employ its lazy dollars.

All in all, the start of such a vast program of construction by the federal government would prime the motor of business activity and prime the pump of prosperity for our farmers. And, national prosperity in its fullest scope would be revived, for when the purse of the farmer and the pay envelope of the workman are well filled, national prosperity is inevitable. But, when the consuming and purchasing

Guides Falling Craft Between Parked Automobiles

ABILENE, Tex., June 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam escaped injury today when her autogiro crashed from an altitude of about 30 feet as she was taking off from the airport here to resume her journey eastward from California. The plane was damaged considerably.

The flier's mechanic, Eddie De Vaught, also was unhurt.

Mrs. Putnam had taken off with a slow start and was heading southward, flying over the heads of the spectators, when the undercarriage of the ship struck a field landing lamp near an automobile parking enclosure. When it became evident the autogiro could not clear the automobiles, the woman pilot expertly set the ship down in a clear space. Its wings struck two cars without damaging them seriously.

Mrs. Putnam, the first woman to cross the Atlantic Ocean in an airplane, declared she had control of the "flying windmill" at all times, explaining:

"I underestimated the distance. Possibly a whirlwind caught the tail of the autogiro."

HEIRESS HINTED SLAIN OVER BLACKMAIL

'Love Diary' Taken Before Grand Jury; Young Sister Held 'Enigma' of Case

International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Starr Faithfull, eccentric and bizarre child of culture and aristocracy, was murdered for blackmail, the New York Journal said today as the Nassau grand jury began its official probe into the riddle of her slaying.

As District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards, who maintains the girl was slugged into unconsciousness and then deliberately drowned in shallow water, entered the grand jury chamber, he carried a sheaf of documents under his arm, including the "love diary" of the murdered Starr.

Aid in the solution of the crime is expected from the emotional notations, names and initials of masculine friends contained in the perfumed little volume with the silver clasp and key.

READY TO TESTIFY

Waiting in an anteroom to be called to testify were Stanley E. Faithfull, step-father of the dead girl; Mrs. Helen McGregory Faithfull, her mother; Frank W. Wyman, of Boston, her father, and first husband of Mrs. Faithfull; Elizabeth Tucker Faithfull, 19, sister of Starr, and Francis P. Hamlin, of Dedham, Mass., of-

REFORMS URGED IN CITY WORKS DEPARTMENT

Engineers Point to Defects In System; Recommend Many Changes to Council

Drastic reforms of the administration of affairs of the Public Works Department—which spends between $4,000,000 and $6,000,000 of the city taxpayers' money each year in construction and improvement projects—was recommended to City Council today.

Twelve suggestions were contained in the report of the Engineers Committee of Five, delivered to President of Council John S. Herron, to improve the department's efficiency.

They are:

1. Improved budget control with earlier determination of projects.

2. More careful preliminary studies.

3. Estimates so prepared as to make all but a few contingent items unnecessary.

UNFAIR BIDDING

4. Instructions to bidders, specifications and articles of agreement are burdensome, exhaustive and unfair to contractors. They should be simplified.

5. Representation of chief engineer on City Planning Commission.

6. Recognition by Council that the chief engineer is the administrative or executive head of one of the large business enterprises of the city of Pittsburgh, and, as such, his time should be devoted to matters of organization and administration; he should not be expected or required to keep all

NEW TAXI PLEA TO BE HEARD

At the same time the commission set the third hearing for the Peoples company for the commission offices in the City-County Building July 1 at 9:30 a. m.

Peoples company officials said they had 400 cabs ready for immediate delivery and the applications of 900 experienced drivers on file. They also said they would operate on a lower rate than the Green and Yellow lines.

VIOLENCE BY UNITED MINE WORKERS DENIED

Men Armed, National Head Warns; One Shot, Four Beaten During Disorders

HARRISBURG, June 12.—Phillip Murray, of Pittsburgh, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, arrived here this afternoon to confer with Gov. Gifford Pinchot regarding the coal strike situation. The conference was to be held late today.

One of the purposes of Murray's visit to the executive office is to impress upon the governor that the United Mine Workers of America had nothing to do with the recent outbreaks of violence in the coal fields, it was learned.

Murray said he is interested in any movement that will bring about a peaceful solution of the difficulties facing both operators and miners.

Striking Miners Armed, Leader Declares

While Western Pennsylvania seethed with excited demonstrations in three counties today, Vincent Kemenovich, leader of the National Miners' Union, sounded a warning of impending trouble and revealed that the strikers are armed.

He predicted serious consequences "unless the coal companies change their attitude," and declared National Miners' Union officials would not be responsible for the preservation of peace and quiet unless there is a radical change.

In an interview at Walkerville a few minutes before a mass meeting which followed a mass demonstration of 800 strikers at the Vesta mines, near California, Daisytown and Richeyville, he said:

"Unless the coal company officials change their attitude there will be another Herrin here. This thing of shooting and injuring miners is going to bring serious consequences.

"I don't have to tell you that all of these miners are armed.

"Unless there is a radical change, we union officials will

OHIO ZONE QUIET AFTER RIOT

BULLETIN.

COLUMBUS, O., June 12.—(AP.)—A serious riot at new Lafferty mine of the M. A. Hanna Coal Company late this afternoon cannot be averted, Paul D. Waddell, prosecuting attorney of Belmont County, told Gov. White today.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., June 12.—(AP.)—Outward calm prevailed in Belmont County today despite a march on the county jail last night by 2,000 miners and their sympathizers, following the arrest of seven persons for creating disorders and the tear-gassing of 12 others by deputy sheriffs.

The disorders at the jail, the first serious outbreak in the week-old strike, followed the arrest of seven leaders of a march on the new Lafferty mine of the M. A. Hanna Coal Company, where 320 men continued at work despite the strike.

With 40 deputies at the Lafferty mine, Sheriff Duff held 20 others, sworn in early today, in readiness at the county jail for any trouble. The new deputies were recruited from local members of the American Legion.

Leo Thompson, of Pittsburgh, alleged leader of the disturbance last night, was still in jail today, and Prosecutor Paul Waddel said he would be charged with inciting a riot.

His attention attracted by the mewing of a kitten, Patrolman Richard Kearns early today peered into the darkened restaurant at 328 Liberty avenue and discovered a fire. The restaurant, the Times Coffee Shop, was damaged $300, according to Battalion Chief William Graves.

Firemen who forced their way into the restaurant, rescued the kitten. The flames were confined to the cellar where they had originated in a rubbish pile. Dense coluds of smoke filled the building and firemen were forced to use gas masks.

Firemen also aroused 10 occupants of a rooming house at 330 Liberty avenue.

Razor Blade, Pin Removed From Throat of Boy

A two-edged razor blade was successfully removed from the throat of Morris Dye, 15, of Morganza, it was revealed today at Homeopathic Hospital. Dye is recovering.

The operation was performed by Dr. Warren B. Shepard, of 474 Lincoln avenue, Bellevue, who used an instrument perfected by Dr. Chevalier Jackson, of Philadelphia. The operation was bloodless.

Dye was brought to the hospital from Morganza several days ago after he had swallowed two open safety pins. One of the pins has been recovered. On Wednesday, according to reports, he "borrowed" a razor blade from a fellow patient, which he swallowed after wrapping it in a piece of paper.

LEWIS' COAL PARLEY PLEA GIVEN LABOR DEPARTMENT

MEETING URGED FOR OPERATORS AND MINERS

Degraded Life and Serf Labor Breeding Anarchy, Union Appeal to President Says

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(AP.)—The communication of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, asking President Hoover to convene a joint meeting of operators and coal miners has been referred to the Labor Department for recommendation.

Lewis asked the President to call the meeting for the purpose of "mutually discussing the problems of the industry and finding a common basic understanding."

MINERS "SERFS"

The union official said the coal miners had been degraded to levels approximating serf labor and that the part of women and children in the mines was "inhuman."

Lewis also charged that coal operators were "without leadership" and said he believed the only solution to the difficulty to be in an understanding reached at such a meeting as he requested the President to call.

"The operators, the coal miners, coal mining communities and the press of this nation recognize the ills of the bituminous coal industry as being of such a cancerous nature that no self aid can be expected from the industry's own initiative.

ASKS LEADERSHIP

"The prevalent belief is that only through the efforts of leadership of outside influence can a basis be reached for a correction of existing abuses. The bituminous coal industry needs no further investigation—the facts of this backward and ill-functioning industry are know to all who would trouble themselves to ascertain them. Already there has been too much palliative talk and insufficient action."

ficial of a ship line and a friend of Starr.

Starr's chic sister, who smoked a chain of cigarets as she nervously awaited her turn before the grand jury, was branded as the enigma in the solution of the mystery by Edwards, who declared:

"If Elizabeth would talk—"

The Evening Journal, acting independently of District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards in the investigation of the grotesque mystery, learned, it claimed, that three men, victims of the plot in which the beautiful girl was a central figure, were being sought as those who would have paid a premium for her life.

HIRED SLAYERS

These men, according to the information gathered by the Journal, hired men who in turn hired the actual slayers, the brutal assassins who lured the unsuspecting beauty to a quiet rendezvous, rendered her senseless, and threw her into the angry Atlantic to drown as though a suicide.

Last night a week ago, the Thursday before she was seen for the last time by her family, she was at a mid-town speakeasy with two men, the newspaper said.

The events are not known in detail, but it was established that upon her return to her home, about 1:30 a. m. Friday, she told her sister that she had "a delightful time."

District Attorney Edwards still pinned his hope for a solution of the mystery on the politician named Wednesday as the principal figure in the case. He said:

"This politician is being checked up."

PINCHOT CUTS FUND BILL BY $2,776,090

Appropriations' Measure Signed After Slash; Repairs Item Reduced

HARRISBURG, June 12.—(AP.)—The general appropriation bill was signed today by Gov. Pinchot.

The Governor exercised his power of veto to the extent of $2,776,090. As passed by the General Assembly, the appropriations total $153,168,017.62 for the general expenses of the state government for the next two years. As signed by the Governor, the total made available from the general fund is $150,391,967.62.

The largest cut made by the Governor was an item of $1,038,000 for maintenance and repairs at state teachers colleges. The second largest reduction made by the Governor was in the appropriation to the Public Service Commission. As a result of testimony that the commission was hampered by lack of funds, given at the investigations of the commission during the recent session of the Legislature, both branches approved an increase of $862,000 for salaries and general expenses. The Governor topped off this increase, leaving the appropriation for that purpose at the budget estimate of $845,000. The total for the commission approved is $1,011,000, the same sum as for the biennium just ended.

A total of $470,750 was trimmed from state-owned welfare institutions maintenance appropriations, bringing the total allocated to that department to $22,397,000, the sum recommended by the department itself.

Pennsylvania joined the list of states in which the sale and use of firearms is licensed and regulated when Gov. Pinchot yesterday signed the bill of Representative Morton Witkin, Philadelphia.

MARCH ON MINES

This morning the strikers mobilized and marched on six mines in widely separated districts of Washington and Allegheny counties, coming from Westmoreland and Fayette counties to participate in the demonstrations.

Five women, alleged to have participated in the march on Montour No. 10 mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company at Library in defiance to Sheriff Robert S. Cain's orders, were taken into custody. They were later released after promising not to parade.

A man described as a sympathizer was shot last night at Gallatin, four miners in an automobile were stoned at Wildwood, one being struck.

The man shot at Gallatin is Lawrence Shaw, 50. He was shot by an Allegheny County deputy sheriff M. C. Lutz, 27, of 1012 Forbes street, county detectives said.

Lutz, according to reports, fired upon Shaw in a group of strikers who are alleged to have threatened the deputy. He was charged with felonious shooting.

MARCH ON VESTA

The long-expected march on Vesta No. 4, of the Vesta Coal Company, materialized this morning with a turnout of 800 men and women taking part in defiance of the proclamation of Sheriff J. A. Seaman, of Washington County.

Another group of 200 to 300 strikers marched from Slovan to the Francis mine at Burgettstown, and between 150 and 175 strikers from the Kinloch district around New Kensington marched down the river to the Harwick mine of the Duquesne Light Company, near Harmarville.

The four miners stoned were returning from work last night at Wildwood. They were Howard Ikenberg, W. R. Kerchner, Walter Gay and Park Netheat. Kerchner was struck on the head. He was not hurt seriously.

PARLEY IN MINE STRIKE URGED

Investigation of strike disorders at the Kinloch mine of the Valley Camp Coal Company by federal and state investigators was followed today by a request to Secretary of Labor William N. Doak to call a conference of miners and operators to end the 11-day-old walkout.

This move towards conciliation followed the reports of Walter Cryster, an investigator for the Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry, and Peter Bollenbacher, local agent of the United States Department of Labor, on their inquiry into the disturbance at Kinloch mine in which three strikers were shot by Westmoreland County deputy sheriffs.

Other federal and state conciliators are making an inquiry into conditions in Washington County.

WAR IN CHINA is more unpleasant than in other countries. In Kiangsi Province, noncombatant farmers were used as a shield by Chinese bandits fighting the so-called "regulars." Ten thousand noncombatants forced to stand the gunfire from two sides were slaughtered.

THAT SHOCKS US, and well may. However, in the memoranda of the Angel Gabriel it may not be so very different from our "civilized" system that forces millions of young men into war by conscription, whether they want to go or not, and sends them to be gassed and shot down by explosive shells and machine gun fire.

THE IRISH FREE STATE discovers a great hidden collection of arms, evidently intended by Irish Republicans to upset the existing government. It is difficult to understand the desire of any Irishman to overthrow a government that proves the capacity of the Irish to govern themselves, succeeding financially and industrially, much better than the government of the North of Ireland, and 500 per cent better than the government of Great Britain.

Members of cold-blooded races used to say the emotional Celts, meaning Irishmen, and the Jews could govern everything but themselves. It would be a pity to interfere with the Irish demonstration that they can govern themselves.

Coolidge Urges Study Of Early American Era

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., June 12.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Practically everything in the way of original records of the discovery, exploration and settlement of our country is in Europe. A great deal of colonial history is also located there. In Scandinavia and Iceland documents possibly exist relating to this country before the time of Columbus. Scholars report a vast amount of material in the archives of Spain, France and Holland concerning our early history that has never been carefully investigated. The Vatican is supposed to be another source of important material. London has been only partially examined.

Mr. Coolidge

All these original sources of the history of this country ought to be thoroughly explored by competent scholars. The new method of photographing documents on films so that they can be reproduced on a screen when wanted would seem to be an inexpensive method of making these ancient records available to students.

This work might well be undertaken by the national government, by a university, or some of the charitable foundations. A great mass of important documents is known to exist from the observations of those searching for facts concerning some specific event of individual life, but they have never been systematically studied. The whole record should be disclosed.

BINGHAM TO OFFER 4 PER CENT BEER BILL IN CONGRESS

SENATOR SEES BREW AS AID TO BUSINESS

Measure Will Ask Inquiry Into Economic Effect of Changing Volstead Act

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The new Congress will be asked to investigate the economic and social effects of legalizing 4 per cent beer, in view of the Wickersham Commission's failure to complete such an inquiry, it was announced today by Senator Bingham (Rep.), of Connecticut.

Bingham declared he would introduce his bill, amending the Volstead act to permit the manufacture, transportation and sale of four per cent beer. He said he would have it referred to the Senate Manufacturers Committee, of which Senator LaFollette, (Rep.) of Wisconsin, is chairman, and ask that committee to conduct the inquiry into its economic and social effects.

Bingham joined with Representative Dyer (Rep.), of Missouri, and Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, in declaring the legal sale of beer would tend to solve both the unemployment problem and the current depression. He rather agreed with Dyer, that state and federal revenues from such a legalized trade would solve the tax problems of the nation. Bingham said:

"It seems that in view of the fact that many experts — toxicologists and physiologists — have declared 4 per cent beer is not intoxicating in fact, this is a proper problem for Congress to consider. We should learn the effect of legalizing 4 per cent beer on business in general, determine its legality under the constitutional amendment, and its general effect on society.

"The fact that the most successful nations in northern Europe—Germany and England—are beer-drinking nations shows its ill effects have been exaggerated and its benefits not sufficiently appreciated."

Interior Secretary Knocked To Floor But Delivers Address at Graduation

International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, suffered from slight bruises today as the result of a sudden fall of a stage curtain. The cloth curtain, which was not weighted, dropped while degrees were being awarded last night at the Brooklyn Academy of Music to graduates of Long Island University.

The secretary and Dean George W. Hardy were knocked down, but quickly jumped to their feet. There were 2,000 persons in the academy at the time.

Secretary Wilbur said society was seeking progressive betterment, not perfection, and said man's superiority over the lower animals depended largely on attributes classified as spiritual, moral and intellectual.

SOCIAL LEADER SUED BY WIFE AS BIGAMIST

Second Mrs. Motley Acts On Learning of Divorce Appeal Filed by First

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—(AP.)—Charges of bigamy were lodged here today against Thornton Lothrop Motley, 30, New York social registerite.

The warrant was sworn to by Mrs. Yvonne Corrine Poillon Motley, who resides at a fashionable apartment here, after she read in newspapers that another Mrs. Motley had sued for divorce in Cleveland.

Both principals in the case disappeared after the warrant was served on Motley, who obtained his freedom on $1,000 bail.

WEDDING REPEATED

Marriage license records reveal Motley and Miss Poillon were married last August 18 here, he giving his age as 29, and address as Aberdeen, Wash., while she said she was 21 and came from Leavenworth, Kan.

The Rev. J. R. Broyer, who married them, said they asked for a 'repeat' ceremony, and he performed the rites twice. Just why, he did not know, he said.

Motley was widely known in the financial circles. He appeared here last September, coming from New York and Chicago. Broker friends said his wife was a Santa Barbara society girl he met and wooed in Hawaii.

SUIT KEPT SECRET

Until about a week ago, Motley was employed by a Montgomery street brokerage house, when he suddenly resigned.

A news dispatch, April 15, from Cleveland said the former Anobel Parker, well-known member of the Sutton Place set in New York, had filed for divorce from Motley, charging cruelty. Although the suit was filed last December, it was not made public until April.

The second Mrs. Motley not only learned her husband was not divorced from his first wife, but was also the father of a daughter, it was said.

Motley's father was a figure in Wall street until his death about a year ago.

"The President of the United States is all right. I doubt if any man was ever subjected to malice organized to the nth degree as he has been, but he has never raised his voice in complaint."

Hyde called upon the Young Republicans to weild polo mallets on the "yes-but" members in the party.

AFGHAN PRINCE, U. S. GIRL WED

GLEN COVE, N. Y., June 12.—(AP.)—The romance of a prince of Afghanistan and a French-American girl which began in Maine six years ago, resulted Saturday in their marriage in New York, it has been disclosed.

Prince Sirdar Ataulla K. Ozai, 33, who was exiled when he tried to introduce progressive policies in his native country, and Fleurette Pape, 24, who was born in Lewiston, Me., of French parents, are spending their honeymoon in Seven Gables, country home of Robert J. Caldwell, at Mill Neck, Long Island.

Ozai never uses the "Prince" before his name and has taken out papers to become an American citizen. He said:

"I love this country, and I am not a prince here. It is true my family was connected with the ruling family of Afghanistan, but I am going to become an American citizen and wish to be known simply as Mr. Osai."

HEAVY SEAS TAX NAUTILUS

Master of Submarine Nautilus.

By Radio Via American News Corporation and Radio Marine Corporation.

ABOARD SUBMARINE NAUTILUS, At Sea, June 12.—The Nautilus ran into heavy seas and a strong north-by-east breeze last night, and had a sizeable task in skipping through the rollers.

Our position was north latitude 43.10, west longitude 41.08, or approximately 1,440 miles off Boston.

Because of the heavy-running seas and stiff breeze, we are conserving current of our hard-pressed batteries, and are proceeding at seven knots.

Senate Unanimously Votes To Urge Congress Action On Hearst Proposal

Universal Service

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 12.—By unanimous vote the Senate yesterday adopted a resolution memorializing Congress to enact William Randolph Hearst's proposal for a $5,000,000,000 federal bond issue to restore property.

The House unanimously approved the resolution Wednesday. The indorsement and plea will be submitted to Gov. Emmerson early next week for his signature, after which it will be forwarded to President Hoover and both branches of the national Congress.

QUICK APPROVAL

So enthusiastic were the members over the soundness and attractiveness of Mr. Hearst's idea they called for immediate approval without reference to a committee, the customary procedure.

Senator George M. Maypole, of Chicago, who introduced the resolution in the upper house of the Legislature, declared:

"America is the richest nation on earth, yet business in many sections is in the doldrums. There is no logical reason for it. The people in such areas are suffering from the effects of fear.

"As Mr. Hearst said in his radio address to the nation last week, there are a great many public improvements which the federal government must build and which are urgently needed. Since they are going to be built, why not build them now? An increased circulation of money will follow, the hysteria of depression will pass, benefits will result from the completed projects, again the country will go forward happily.

"Mr. Hearst is to be congratulated for advancing such a far-seeing plan and in giving it the weight of his reputation and name."

'NO POLITICS'

Like Speaker Shanahan the night before, Lieut. Gov. Sterling suspended the long calendar of bills to permit consideration of the resolution.

Representative Howard M. Doyle, of Decatur, author of the resolution, said:

"There is no politics in work for the common good. There is no politics in this. The unanimous vote of the Legislature demonstrates that. Now there should be no politics in putting Mr. Hearst's scheme into effect. Congress should act without delay."

GOVERNORS SET JOB PARLEY

NEW YORK, June 12.—(Universal.)—A conference of governors to study and act on the unemployment problem in contemplated for the near future.

Gov. Roosevelt and Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, are understood to be the chief sponsors of the meeting. A formal announcement concerning it is expected Monday. The idea of calling such a conference, it was said, originated at the governors' meeting in French Lick Springs, Ind., 10 days ago.

Pinchot, it was learned, favored broadening the projected conference to include power, prohibition and agriculture, as well as unemployment. It was understood to be Gov. Roosevelt's idea that the conference should concern itself solely with formulating a constructive program for unemployment relief.

Hearst Proposal Would Spur Immediate Recovery in Business, Senator Says

power of the wage earner and the farmer is curtailed, national prosperity cannot be substantial nor enduring.

Aid to Steel Industry

To fully visualize the inspirational and practical effect of such a federal program of public work upon our general economic structure, let us turn our eyes toward the steel industry as an individual example. A vast public work program would spur these mills to marked activity, offering plenty of work for countless thousands of workmen and reviving the activities of the iron ore mines in Minnesota; the railroads and Great Lakes ships which carry the ore to the steel mills; the coal mines which provide fuel for the industry; the quarries which supply limestone and refining materials, and so on down the line to the grocer, the butcher, the baker and the proverbial candlestick maker.

Moreover, the great volume of sound public work which could be carried out by such a plan, as sponsored by Mr. Hearst, would accelerate the federal projects now being undertaken through the limitations of the Wagner law, which permits only $150,000,000 a year for such activities. This amount is only a drop in the bucket. In wages alone it would only asure work to 250,000,000 persons, whose daily pay rate would average $6.

Sum Reasonable

Five billion dollars might appear as a stupendous sum to individuals, but to a nation as rich in material wealth and natural resources as the United States, the sum is modest. Our people raised many billions virtually overnight for the financing of the war, which resulted in the unprecedented destruction of human life and property. Surely it can spare five billion dollars for a war against economic depression.

The creation of a $5,000,000,000 sinking fund for this purpose would not be as costly on the taxpayers of our nation as would be a dole, which would destroy the initiativeness of many in our working classes, as was proved in the panic of 1891 and 1892, when prolonged existence of soup kitchens and other forms of public charity killed the ambition and energy of thousands of jobless men, who ever after lived the lives of derelicts and hoboes.

The taxpayers of our nation will find that it is cheaper to provide constructive plans for the promotion of sound and much needed public works projects than it would be to finance a dole for our unemployed people.

Pinchot Shows Interest In Prosperity Loan

HARRISBURG, June 12.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today expressed great interest in the proposal made by William Randolph Hearst that the government issue $5,000,000,000 in bonds as an emergency measure for the maintenance of the wage scale and the carrying forward of public improvements. He said:

"I have given it and I am giving it serious thought. As a matter of fact, I have asked the opinions and advice of some of the leading economists of Pennsylvania on the proposal."

MRS. NIXON :-: Determined to Leave, She Tells Mate :-: BUYS PISTOL

Beauty Tells of Jealousy Which Led to Last Tragic Quarrel

This is the sixteenth installment of her own life story by Mrs. Charlotte Nixon-Nirdlinger, recently acquitted in Nice, France, of the murder of her wealthy husband after a sensationally brief trial.

In previous chapters she told of her marriage to Mr. Nixon-Nirdlinger, after a whirlwind courtship, their subsequent divorce and remarriage, the jealous quarrels that led to his disappearance, the automobile accident that changed his nature and the renewal of quarrels upon their last tragic trip together to Europe.

Today Charlotte continues the story of their final quarrels and the jealous suspicions of her husband just before his tragic death.

By CHARLOTTE NIXON-NIRDLINGER

(Copyright, 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

NICE.

My poor husband was not always bad. He had many wonderful ways and did many nice things. But the most terrible of maladies possessed him—jealousy.

Late in February I began to notice that his jealous nature was becoming almost impossible to endure. I lay awake at night fighting between the continued welfare of my children and my own desire to escape from this prison, in which I was barred from the outside world by suspicion, accusations, jealousies.

I knew that the moment I told my husband I intended to leave he would suddenly change, make ardent pleas and all sorts of promises. If I agreed to stay then I knew also he would revive his old suspicions.

But during the last few weeks of his life I decided I would have to leave him. He seemed to be bereft of whatever reason he had had before. He roared at me in public and threatened me in private. Time after time I was humiliated before my friends by Fred's jealous accusations. Of course, most of them realized my plight and told me I ought to leave Fred.

Agrees to Parting

Finally I did tell him that unless he changed immediately I would pack up and leave with the children. But, to my surprise, he made no pleas, no promises. He quietly assented and said he would first have to communicate with one of his managers in America and get advice as to how much he should settle upon me and the children.

I was so stunned by this change of attitude that I decided there and then I could not leave him. His generosity overwhelmed me. But the next day he broke out again into one of his fits of jealousy and made all sorts of terrible charges against me.

When I tried to ask Fred why he took on so, when he knew his charges weren't true, he acted like a child. He would shout at me that I did not realize the duties of married life. Heaven knows, I gave all the time I could to my home and to my children. True I took part in sports, enjoyed the theaters and cafes now and then—but there isn't a married woman of even moderate wealth on the Riviera who doesn't do the same thing. Else, why are they on the Riviera? Certainly not to settle down to a quiet, domestic life. The Riviera is a place of play and recreation. And I was young and wanted some fun. That, it seems to me, was no violation of my wifely duties. Perhaps I am a poor judge to comment on married life, having experienced such a sad one, but I have seen many very happy married couples. The greatest trouble seems to me that marriage brings too much intimacy.

Urges Freedom

Often one's ideas are completely submerged and too close contact with any one person over a great length of time becomes monotonous. If a plan could be arranged that would be practical, I'd say marriage is the only thing. Without it we have no stability. But each one should have perfect liberty to act and do as she or he rightfully wants, so long as no harm is done to anyone.

This is my philosophy today, I suppose. If it is a somewhat unsentimental one it is because of the experience I had to undergo. Our ideas are always based on our experiences and when the latter are harsh it is too much to expect one to think of marriage, or of any other institution, in terms of sweetness and light.

When I was only 17 my ideas of marriage were probably like those of any other young girl. I would dream of a Prince Charming coming along. He was a handsome young man, brave, daring, kind, generous. He would sweep me off my feet, carry me away and in some remote spot we would live happily ever after.

Even at that age, and while still dreaming these dramas, I found myself suddenly picked up and deposited in a beauty pageant in Atlantic City. I was dazzled by the sight of so much beauty about me—but I also was a little bewildered by its exploitation. Then I began to discover, all within a few weeks, that men clamored selfishly for this beauty, that they would even try to buy it.

Kind and Generous

I was baffled but I kept my head. I saw no Prince Charmings—merely men. They were vain men, most of them—gallant men, some of them. Then along came Fred Nixon-Nirdlinger. He was not a Prince Charming in the way I had dreamed. But he seemed kind and generous, thoughtful and unselfish.

He did indeed sweep me off my feet. He showered everything upon me. He spoke of marriage and I was almost frightened. Then marriage swiftly came and motherhood and the other problems of domesticity.

I could have been happy. But Fred would not allow me to be. Instead of showing his gallant nature he revealed a selfish one. He wanted me to be a princess, I suppose, but it was like the princess in the fairy tale books who was locked in a high prison tower so that no men could see her and admire her.

Fred sought to make me something superb, elegant, fragile. But why? For himself? I wonder. I think it was vanity that inspired this ideal. He wanted to show me off to other men—and yet when other men spoke to me he became outraged.

I was able to stand Fred's torturous attitude until one day he came to me and said he had bought a revolver. Several times he held it toward my face and said he would kill me. He sometimes added he would kill himself. I was a nervous wreck. I tried hard to please his every whim.

But the scenes continued. He would brandish the revolver and then place it under his pillow before going to bed. I was so terrified I didn't know what to do. But I did do something. I obtained a revolver for my own safety. I told Fred that if he put his gun in my face again to look out. I thought that would frighten him.

BRISBANE SEES SOVIET FAILURE

ATLANTIC CITY, June 12.—(INS.)—Arthur Brisbane, noted journalist, believes that communism in Russia is doomed to failure. He also scouted danger of a similar revolution in the United States as a result of the depression.

His address was broadcast over a nationwide hookup. The dinner was attended by many leaders of the country's greatest industries, including Owen D. Young, Gerard Swope and Henry L. Doherty.

TWO IN MURDER CASE KIDNAPED

LOS ANGELES, June 12.—(INS.)—Two witnesses in the double murder of Charles H. Crawford and Herbert F. Spencer today were recovering from shock and injuries after being kidnaped.

Both Mrs. Ethel Hamlin, a prominent clubwoman, and William E. French, a radio dealer, had told police of threats earlier in the week and asked for protection, which was not given.

French, with one eye and part of his head bandaged, appeared at the office of Special Prosecutor W. J. Ford, who announced French had escaped from two kidnapers after they had driven to San Diego.

Mrs. Hamlin, forced into an automobile near her home Wednesday night by a man who represented himself to be from the district attorney's office, was found two hours later, lying on a sidewalk several miles from her home. She and French had identified David H. Clark, former prosecutor, charged with the murders, as one who fled from the scene of the shootings.

BANKER'S SON LINKED IN TRIAL

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 12.—Activities of John N. Ruth, son of L. F. Ruth, on trial for misapplying the funds of the defunct Title and Trust Company of Western Pennsylvania of Connellsville, went into the records of the case today when Special Prosecutor A. E. Jones turned his attention to three checks aggregating $8,217.93 made out to the younger Ruth from the proceeds of the $60,000 mortgage loaned by the bank to the Waynesburg Coal Company.

The three checks, according to Assistant Trust Officer O. R. Harmon, were deposited to the credit of Mr. Ruth's son on June 29, 1929, the same day the $60,000 mortgage was authorized. At the same time a check was drawn on the younger Ruth's account for $7,931.42.

Clashes between opposing counsel became more pointed today when Attorney Dumbauld objected to Special Prosecutor A. E. Jones conferring with Harmon in whispers in front of the jury box.

Students Allowed To Use Books In Exams

CHICAGO, June 12.—(AP.)—Something new in collegiate circles took place at the University of Chicago yesterday.

Seventeen selected freshmen students in a class in literature conducted by the University's president, Robert Maynard Hutchins, were permitted to look at will at the books they had studied and consult their lecture notes when they took their written examination.

Thus, the dishonored "pony" was, in a sense, made legitimate.

SCOUTS TO HOLD FIRST AID MEET

The fourth annual Boy Scout first aid meet sponsored by the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council will be held on the campus of Carnegie Institute of Technology tomorrow afternoon. One hundred and seventy-one teams, with six scouts to a team, are entered for the meet.

Representatives of all the councils in Western Pennsylvania will be present. Teams have been entered from McKeesport, East Boroughs and Homestead as well as Lawrence, Washington, Greene, Westmoreland, Beaver, Butler and Allegheny counties.

Specially trained first aid experts have been coaching the scout teams for the last six weeks. Ed J. Kreh is chairman of the meet.

KERR GRANTED OFFICE HELP

Council has affirmed the ordinance authorizing changes in the personnel of Controller James P. Kerr's office necessitated by installation of a bookkeeping system that centralized the accounting of city departments.

The original proposal of an engineer at $6,000 a year for the controller's office has been put aside for three inspectors at $2,400 each, one of whom will have technical training and be qualified to read blueprints and pass on all construction projects.

The setup provides two traveling auditors, one at $2,400 and one at $2,000. The controller plans to have them make unexpected audits of police magistrates' dockets, and also to check activities of the municipal garage and warehouses where various supplies are stored. Kerr proposes to keep a perpetual inventory by making daily checks of receipts of withdrawals.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

People I've Met

NEW YORK, June 12.

ROY SCHUSTER. Formerly a dancing instructor in the Ned Wayburn Academy. He will soon be placed on trial in this state for the murder of his wife. Short and blonde and quiet, it is hard to think of him as a man who killed.

I think this case is a highly interesting one. It is very much in the Broadway field and is somewhat different from all the rest. From a strictly legal viewpoint, there isn't much to the yarn. Here is a man who killed his wife and must suffer for his crime. But let's go back a bit and consider the human elements of the story.

Suppose we go back to the month of July, 1930, and peer into the home life of Amy and Roy Schuster. Married in 1926, they were the parents of a small daughter, Colleen. The man loved that child more than anything else in life. He talked of the girl to anyone who would listen. He loved his wife, too—but four years of marriage, as Shakespeare never said, are four years of marriage.

Schuster was 26 at the time and his wife was the same age. In his position as a dancing instructor, he was earning $150 a week. Look at him, then: Young. A pretty wife. A child he adored. A nice, little home. A good salary. What more could anyone ask?

But we only see the surface. Schuster complained continually to his friends.

"I love Amy," he said, "but she worries me. Instead of taking care of the child, she goes out. She doesn't watch over the apartment. All she wants to do is to become a dancer. She sits around in pajamas and plays the phonograph. And then, when I came home from a day's work, she insists that I keep teaching her new steps.

"I try hard. Very hard. But she will not learn. I keep telling her she will never become a good dancer. But she insists that she will. Sometimes we fight about her going out and sometimes we fight about her dancing. And it hurts me because the child must sometimes hear."

Not a very terrible situation, was it? Just one of those things that any married couple must go through in one shape or another. But look—

Schuster came home one night and relaxed on the bed. He was tired. Amy came in and asked him to work with her on a new routine. He arose and watched her. He shook his head. He tried to explain. She argued with him. She told him he didn't know what he was talking about—he who made his living as a dance instructor.

His temper got the better of him. He reached out and slapped her face. A moment later he was bitterly sorry. But it was too late. That blow had been the slap of doom.

A short time later she sued him for separation. Amy told her story to a judge who awarded her temporary alimony of $40 a week. And—a more bitter blow—she was to have the custody of little Colleen. The story was published in the theatrical papers and Schuster was kidded unmercifully. Something happened to Roy Schuster after that. Always a quiet little fellow, he grew morose and cold. Up at the dancing school, his pupils began to complain. He barked at them and called them fools. He was no longer the teacher he had been. The strain of his loss and its attendant publicity was telling deeply upon him.

The inevitable happened a few months later. He lost his job. This made him still more bitter. He was compelled to take odd jobs and was unable to meet his alimony payments. His wife insisted that he come through with the money the court had allowed her. He could not meet his obligations. He said he would do his best. He didn't tell her he had attempted suicide by gas on one occasion. He felt it wouldn't do any good.

See the man's mind as the months went by? All he wanted was his wife and his baby by his side once again. All he asked was the peace that had once been his. He craved a reconciliation more than anything else in the world.

But what did he get? A curt refusal. Requests for back alimony. More alimony. Faster alimony. Continual reminders about the time he had slapped her. Stories from friends that his wife was in love with another man. Alimony. More alimony. Faster alimony. But, good God, from where?

On May 3, Roy Schuster walked into the offices of Israel Siegel, attorney for Amy Schuster. The lawyer had just filed, at his client's request, a motion to punish Schuster for failing to pay his alimony. Schuster talked to his wife in the corridor and begged again for a reconciliation. He was refused.

As Mrs. Schuster was about to enter Siegel's office, her husband pulled a gun from his pocket. He fired five shots in all. His wife fell to the floor, dead. The attorney was shot through the arm.

Schuster dashed from the office, his gun still smoking. He took the subway to the neighborhood of his home. He stopped in the cigar store and spoke to the clerk.

"I just shot my wife," he cried wildly. "I must get away. Please lend me $2."

The cigar store was a neighborhood affair that sold little tickets and practical joke outfits on the side. Soap that turned the hands black. Schuster had often bought things in that store for his little girl. The clerk laughed.

"Quit your kidding, Mr. Schuster!" he grinned.

The dance instructor ran from that store to the barber shop without his $2. A normal action for a desperate man? Think it over. In the barber shop, his barber was shaving a customer.

"You've got to help me, Nick," shouted Schuster. "I need $2 to get away. I just killed my wife!"

Nick grinned.

"Sit down in thata chair, Mr. Schus'," he said. "You beena drink too mucha gin. I giva you nice colda towel.". . .

How he got there I do not know, but they captured Roy Schuster in Little Rock, Ark., just 26 days later. He readily admitted his identity. Police found him writing a book on stage dancing when they arrived.

He explained the situation to them.

"I've been trying to hurry this book along," he asserted. "I wanted to get it finished before you fellows nabbed me. It's for my little Colleen.

"Maybe she'd be able to sell it. Maybe not. But, anyhow, she'd know more about her daddy when she was able to understand."

Questioned at greater length, he said he had little doubt about the outcome of his trial.

"My story is a simple one," he murmured, "but I don't think there will ever be a jury that will understand."

He went still further.

"If I say I am a victim of circumstances, they will laugh at me. My story will get me nowhere when I go on trial. I am sure I will be sentenced to death."

So there you have it. A slap in the face. A suit for separation. The loss of a child. Too much alimony. And a loaded gun.

The simple story of a man who killed. . . .

MEYER JONASSON'S

THE INDIVIDUAL FASHION FOR GAY FIVE-TILL-SEVEN PERIOD

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, June 12.—That oft yawning chasm that divides the tea hour from the joyous camaraderie of the dinner gathering has been receiving much attention from the smart dressmakers. And so with the invaluable aid of a new and distinctly individual fashion, five-till-seven period has become a gay and festive one with much entertaining and spontaneous hospitality. The cocktail-hour dress has become an accepted part of the mode and there are very few establishments that fail to show some new and delightful variations of this theme.

THESE FROCKS are of the luxurious order and are quite in order for the little or informal dinner that is so often the prolongation of the cocktail party here. Such materials as crepe marocain and satin seem to be the favored fabrics and the ensembles are beautifully and intricately styled and made. One sees the very smartest models of black and white satin used for these costumes, although lately there is a distinct tendency towards color, a new and interesting idea.

Engineers Urge Works Reforms

details of the many projects in mind.

7. Installation of an accounting system that will give the chief engineer information by which to chart his course. This should provide proper cost accounting of all day labor work, of all contract work, of all engineering work done by the different bureaus, and of all operation and maintenance of city plant under the department. Only with such cost data can an executive administer such a large enterprise and only with such cost data can a proper opinion of administration be formed.

8. The Civil Service Bureau should be strengthened by the employment of a competent engineer advisor.

9. The inspection force should be strengthened.

10. The controller should have an engineer advisor with the necessary assistance, in order to properly check contracts, estimates and inspection.

MORE TIME ON JOBS

11. The chief engineer and his staff should spend more time on construction work while it is in progress.

12. The chief engineer should be immediately relieved of all other duties for a period of three months and ordered to devote all of this time to a study of organization and methods of administration. This study should be of the functions performed by each bureau and division. This will bring out many duplications and ideas for improvement of organization. As a guide he should be required to study similar departments of other cities and large corporations.

Samuel A. Taylor was chairman of the committee, which was comprised of J. N. Chester, C. S. Davis, E. K. Morse and A. E. Butler. It was selected by the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania at the request of City Council and Public Work Department officials following charges of inefficiency in the department's methods made by former City Controller Henry Oliver Evans.

POLITICS INVOLVED

Political patronage in the Public Works Department was alleged by Evans in hearing before City Council.

Charles M. Reppert, chief city engineer, commenting on the engineers' report, said:

"All in all, the report appeals to me as a good constructive piece of work which should be of great value to the city. I have not had time to analyze it fully, for it is packed with information. I believe it will help us in the administration of the department."

Edward G. Lang, director of the Department of Public Works, admitted in his testimony that some of the appointments in the inspection staff were dictated by higher-ups. Later he denied that these instructions were from Mayor Charles H. Kline.

That the city engineer, who is responsible for the supervision of as much as $6,000,000 a year in construction work, should have the freedom to select the men for his organization who are properly qualified to do their work is emphasized by the committee's report.

The committee finds that adequate supervision and inspection of city construction must be provided if the work is to be carried out according to the city engineer's ideas. Evidence of weakness in the present inspection force is found in the fact that some contract work has admittedly been found deficient, the engineers state.

COST SYSTEM LAX

That no cost accounting system worthy of the name is in force in the Department of Public Works is revealed. It is admitted that without proper cost accounting no executive can administer such a large enterprise.

The appointment of an engineer advisor to prepare questions and grade papers in the civil service examinations for selecting the personnel of the department is recommended. Such an engineer could be in close touch with the department's requirements, it is pointed out.

That the chief engineer and his staff should spend more time on construction work while it is in progress is suggested. The report notes briefly that this recommendation needs no comment.

URGE PLANNING

A well-balanced general plan is necessary the report states. It points out that the amount of money involved in possible fraudulent contracts, poor workmanship, extras, and all other sources of additional cost may be insignificant in comparison with what may be wasted in an ill conceived or poorly balanced general plan.

Inspection by an outside testing laboratory, as has been proposed, is frowned on by the engineers, who conclude that much friction would result. They say that the responsibility should remain under City Engineer Charles M. Reppert.

More can be accomplished they say by greater care in the selection and training of inspectors. For example, they suggest that one man should be at the concrete mixer at all times when the concrete work is in progress and that another inspector should be assigned to inspect grading and other parts of the contract. Higher pay is recommended for inspectors.

Evidence of insufficient time for study of organization and administration by the City Engineer is outlined the report and the recommendation made that the chief engineer be relieved of all duties for three months to gather helpful ideas from other cities and large corporations.

ADVISOR URGED

An engineer advisor for the controller's office to check contracts, estimates and inspection is recommended. Similar procedure is already in use in the County, and has been asked by Controller James P. Kerr for the city office.

Clear specifications and contracts would do much to encourage bidding by reputable contractors, the engineers declare. Preliminary work should be such as to keep contingent items, that is those which are uncertain as to quantity, at a minimum. It was the presence of numerous contingent items in city contracts which drew the heaviest fire during the Evans investigation.

Pittsburgh has difficult engineering problems due to its hills, the engineers state. Complete engineering study of all projects is absolutely necessary, it is declared.

In the contracts which over-ran estimates and were pointed out by Evans, the engineers found no increases for which there was not good reason.

CONTINGENT ITEMS

The committee admits that it has not had explained to its satisfaction the difference between contingent and non-contingent items. Where there have been as many as 30 contingent items in a single contract, the report states, the result has been a guessing contest among the contractors as to which of the items will be used, and as a result bids have been erratic.

It is stated that additional time spent by city engineers in more nearly estimating quantities in advance will be more than saved in the orderly conduct of the work.

Henry Oliver Evans Praises Engineers

Commenting on the engineers' report submitted to Council today, Attorney Henry Oliver Evans said:

"I am glad to note the recommendation for additional executive employes. One of our weaknesses in municipal affairs, as I see it, is a surplus of unnecessary employes and a deficiency in the higher positions. The recommendation for appointment, especially of inspectors, is most valuable and constructive. I am sure that every one of the recommendations will meet the views of the public and that all will unite in expecting that they be put in force as quickly as possible."

The program includes daily business sessions, social events and entertainments, a water carnival and sightseeing trips. Officers of the Pittsburgh district, which has a membership of 400, will attend. They are: President, Herbert L. Grau, Brookline; vice president, R. Melzner, Oakland; secretary, Clara Bubenheim, Mt. WALSH VOTED PENSION RAISE

Directors of the Police Pension Fund Association yesterday voted a $2,500 yearly pension for Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh upon his retirement. Walsh voted against the pension, an increase of $1,500 a year over the amount he received when he retired as police commissioner, prior to being appointed superintendent.

The board also voted to raise the pensions of all retired police officers from $71 to $85 a month, which will increase the fund's disbursements by $48,000 a year. The additional drain, an auditor told the board, will not keep the fund from being self-sustaining.

The minority of the board declared Walsh's retirement as a commissioner on $1,000 pension prevented him from retiring again as superintendent on a larger pension.

Ford Buys Farms For Agricultural Experiments

DETROIT, June 12.—(AP.)—The Detroit News says that Henry Ford has acquired a large group of farms in Lenawee County in Southeastern Michigan preparatory to turning the property into a vast experimental farm.

Fences separating the farms are being demolished and the land is being cleared, but the old farmhouses are being carefully restored. A small schoolhouse built a century ago and a blacksmith shop which once was a church also are being restored to their former uses.

DILL SUPPORTS ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(INS.)—Senator Dill (Dem.), of Washington, who returned yesterday from Europe, said today he had received inquiries from businessmen abroad, asking when the depression would end in the United States. He asserted:

"I told them it would not end until we get a new President, and I told them the new President would be Gov. Roosevelt, of New York."

He said he noticed Europe is experiencing a "dread of Communism," but he feels the "danger is not as great as the fear."

PRIEST GUEST AT RECEPTION

Pastors of many Catholic churches and members of the parish last night honored the Rev. Daniel J. Maladey, pastor of Holy Rosary Church, Homewood, on the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination. The golden jubilee reception and dinner was held in the Westinghouse High School auditorium.

The speakers were the Rev. Thomas S. Reilly, Judge Ambrose B. Reid, of Common Pleas Court; President of Council John S. Herron, Attorney William L. Jacobs and Father Maladey. Thomas E. Doyle, in behalf of the parish, presented Father Maladey with a purse. Dr. Francis J. Boslett was chairman of the committee.

LEAGUE REPORT REVEALS HUGE DOPE LEAK

Tons of Drugs Received by Illegal Peddlers, Geneva Limitation Parley Hears

By WINIFRED BLACK
Universal Service Special Cable.

GENEVA, June 12.—One hundred tons of morphine and six tons of cocaine leaked into the hands of dope peddlers in the last five years.

Two hundred and fifty tons of eating opium and 260 tons of smoking opium were legitimately manufactured and sold in the open market.

The medicinal needs of the whole world could be supplied for five years with about 40 tons of morphine.

GETTING FACTS

We are getting some real facts and honest figures—at last.

The American delegation interrupted speechmaking and fussing over trifles some days ago and asked that the secretariat give the international narcotic conference of the League of Nations some real facts as a foundation for an honest plan for the limitation of dope.

The secretariat gave the report. A rather staggering statement isn't it?

He ended by declaring since 1930 the figures for illicit dope manufacture had decreased wonderfully, whereat the American delegate, John J. Caldwell, arose and asked where the huge amounts seized by American narcotic forces last year came from.

Let us see, two and a half million dollars' worth of dope seized in New York since 1930, $2,000,000 worth seized by American narcotic agents in Antwerp less than six months ago, a half a million dollars' worth seized in San Francisco not long after—there does seem to be some slight activity in the illicit traffic even yet, doesn't there?

After all the delays and the sidestepping of arguments, things are beginning to happen at the conference.

VOTE CODEIN DANGEROUS

Codein was voted a dangerous drug with a one-vote majority.

So far, on most questions of any importance the divisions are about as follows: The big six on one side of every important question are Britain, Holland, France, Switzerland, Germany and Portugal. They voted codein a harmless drug, and they will probably make a bitter fight to call heroin a legitimate export, too. Against these stand America, China, Japan, Italy, Spain, Soviet Russia and many smaller countries which look to America for moral support and leadership.

In a few days we will all know whether they get it definitely or whether America will catch the fever of European diplomacy and fade away.

ELECTRIC MEET HEARS INSULL

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 12. — (AP.) — Martin J. Insull, president of the Midwest Utilities Company, Chicago, warned the National Electric Light Association against what he said was a sense of "false security." He said:

"This industry has been built on the principle of private initiative, private ownership and private operation. We believe these principles are best for the nation, and so believing, it is our duty to fight for them."

Designating the main reasons for the attacks on the light and power as "political, Socialistic or Communistic," Joseph B. Groce, of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, chairman of the advertising and publicity committee, said that political attacks "can usually best be met through local advertising by local companies rather than by advertising sponsored by the national association." He gave as examples advertising published in Iowa, Colorado and Pennsylvania during the past year.

BANKERS ELECT CINCINNATI MAN PRESIDENT

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Weeks late, we're just hearing about a speech Public Safety Director Clark made before the Allied Boards of Trade. The director advised his listeners to hide a nickel either under the carpet or under the clock on the mantelpiece. Then, if you're ever held up or for any reason want to make a fast report to the police radio station, you have the nickel right there. If you think the director's idea isn't practicable, then you're wrong. He told about the attendant of a gasoline station who, having been held up, ran across the street to telephone the police. When he got across the street he had no nickel for the telephone. And he had to wait and wait. So the advice for today is: Hide a nickel, either under the carpet or under the mantelpiece clock. Needless to say, persons living outside the city telephone zone will have to hide dimes.

A confidential report contends that the auto which collided with a street car at Bellefield and Fifth last Saturday night was that of President Phillips, of the Railways . . . It happened in Oliver avenue . . . Two gents carried her out of what looked like an ambulance . . . A crowd collected . . . The woman apparently was in the nude . . . But it was nothing more than a new clothes model . . . Joe Armstrong inspects the first vote machine. . . . And probably wonders whether enough people'll remember in September how his name's spelled. . . .

True story: He was a reputable business man, jailed for being drunk . . . His cellmate was an habitual drunk . . . Eventually the business man went to sleep and, when the police shift changed, the drunk called the turnkey, gave the sleeping partner's name and said there was enough money in his envelope to get him out on bail . . . He got out. . . .

"The Follies" girls come to town, and now we'll hear stories of stage-door Johns . . . The truth is, they don't exist any more . . . The last time he brought a show to town ("Whoopee") Ziegfeld broke the house record at the Nixon . . .A prediction: "The Follies" will take in $42,000 next week. . . .

A Butler subscriber who asks to be identified simply as Rags, heatedly opposes our description of Mr. Thompson, the Mt. Lebanon pie-baker. Mr. Rags has no doubt that Mrs. Rags is a better pie-maker than Mr. Thompson, and asks: "Can Mr. Thompson bake a good angel food cake out of three eggs?"

On this sentimental note Mr. Rags concludes: "Your article may have aroused the jealousy of many good women cooks, but don't forget that it has aroused the ire of one of their husbands, who still believes that this is a field in which woman has and will continue to reign supreme, so long as she desires to do so."

For Mr. Rags' loyalty we have nothing but admiration. Nevertheless, we are confident our Mr. Thompson will produce an angel food cake out of three eggs.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 12.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, Oklahoma sheriffs broke a record. They finally found a car with no liquor in it, but it was occupied by Mexicans. So they shot two of 'em for being unusual. The sheriffs' excuse was that the car had a Kansas license on it (Kansas adjoins Oklahoma). Does a foreign license in Oklahoma bring out the gendarmes, or is it the name Kansas that makes them shoot on sight?

Will Rogers

If he had shown his badge instead of his gun the thing wouldn't have happened. Well, it's lucky for Mr. Pershing, for if the conditions had been reversed he would have been marching into Mexico today "to clean that country up and make 'em civilized." Yours, WILL.

Next Election Will Be Party For Children

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Democrats and Republicans are going after the juvenile vote.

Eight million Campfire Girls and Boy Scouts will be old enough to cast their first vote next November.

The next presidential contest will be close enough to be swung by these newly hatched political eggs.

So the Democrats want to get these kids and train them while the Republicans want to grab them young and tell them nothing.

The party that finally wins these 8,000,000 callow signatures will be accused of cradle snatching and incubator raiding.

But a vote is a vote. And if you have the right kind of ballot box experts sometimes it is two votes.

So next November you can expect a children's party.

And we can name at least 20 oldtimers who should join it.

"We find the systems of government control in Canada and Sweden are not preventing drunkenness, and poverty and crime; neither have they destroyed bootlegging. We find that prohibition is the best method of dealing with the liquor traffic."

CABINET CRISIS NEAR IN BERLIN

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
Universal Service.

BERLIN, June 12.—The German government will resign immediately if the Reichstag is reconvened to consider the emergency decree of President Von Hindenburg and results of the talks with British chiefs at Chequers.

With no mincing of words, Chancellor Heinrich Bruening made this clear to party leaders when he told them not only that the government would resign, but that he personally could not be prevailed upon to form a new cabinet thereafter.

The Chancellor said, moreover, that he will stand by his present cabinet and is strongly opposed to meeting the demands of some political parties for reorganization of the government.

It was authoritiatively reiterated by the Wilhelmstrasse that the government has no intention of declaring a moratorium of reparations payments immediately.

WOMAN OF 74 GETS LIFE TERM

MACON, Ga., June 12.—(AP.)—For the second time within two years, Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Powers, 74, rooming-house keeper, was convicted of first degree murder here for the death of a youthful orphan.

The jury recommended mercy, sparing Mrs. Powers from death in the electric chair, to which she was sentenced at the first trial, and giving her life imprisonment.

James W. Parks, 18, a lodger in Mrs. Powers' home, was slain in 1929. Earl Manchester, a fellow lodger, confessed he killed the youth because Mrs. Powers promised him $1,000 of a $14,000 insurance policy taken out on Parks' life with the woman named beneficiary. Manchester was sentenced to electrocution. His appeal to the Supreme Court is pending.

Soups Are Great Help in Feeding Convalescents

Though many soups are low in food value they all stimulate stomach secretions and are pleasant appetizers.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City,
United States Senator From New York.

Too many persons regard soup as a nuisance. They rarely enjoy this contribution to the meal. This is the wrong attitude to assume and should be discouraged. The soup course is of real importance.

Most soups are low in food value, it is true. But they serve to stimulate the secretions of the stomach. Having a pleasant and agreeable taste, too, they serve as excellent appetizers.

Ever since the days of Hippocrates, it has been known that liquids and semi-liquids will pass through the intestines more easily than solids. This knowledge has been made use of in the feeding of individuals who have had intestinal operations. Soups are of great help in the feeding of convalescent patients.

In many severe cases of colitis, inflammation of the lining of the intestinal canal, as well as other intestinal disturbances, soups have served as the only means of supplying necessary nourishment. In these ailments we must be thankful we have soups to give.

As a rule, milk or sour soups are the most nutritious. These soups are recommended when prepared from potatoes, barley, rice or other starchy foods. Many individuals, particularly children, who dislike most soups, seldom object to milk or cream soup.

It is essential for the health of many persons that they get large quantities of milk. In the form of soup, it is often possible to meet the necessary milk quota.

Soups offer a method of serving vegetables. Puree vegetable soup, in addition to being highly nutritious, is of pleasing taste and tempting to the most critical. Children rarely object to vegetable soup, and in this way they may be given plenty of the necessary vegetables.

The simple thin, clear broth consists essentially of water highly flavored by the extractives of meat. It is of low nutritional value, serving mainly as an appetizer. Though never definitely proven, this type of soup is believed to be injurious to the kidneys if they are diseased. This effect is due to the high content of meat extractive.

Milk, creamed, and vegetable soups, may be prepared in various ways. They have a definite dietetic value in the feeding of the family.

Soups of many kinds are now canned and sold at the markets. They are nutritive, of high quality and in a form convenient for the busy housewife.

sugar and fruit juice. Then fold in salad dressing. Serve six.

SALMON LOAF WITH EGG NOODLES—1 pound can salmon, 2 eggs, 2 cups soft bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons melted butter, ¼ cup milk, juice of half a lemon, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon minced parsley.

Remove the skin and bones from the salmon. Heat milk and stir in the bread crumbs to make a paste and add this to the salmon with the egg yolks slightly beaten and seasonings. Then fold in the egg whites beaten stiff, pack lightly into a well greased loaf pan and bake in a hot oven, 375 degrees, for 35 minutes. Turn the loaf out on a large platter and garnish with well-cooked and seasoned egg noodles. Serve a cream sauce over all.

PECAN AND CELERY SALAD: Dissolve a package of lemon-flavored gelatine in 1 cup boiling water. When partly cool, add ½ cup grapefruit juice. Pour half the gelatine mixture into a shallow pan or mould. Place several rows of sliced, stuffed olives on top, and let stand until firm. Then pour over the remaining gelatine, adding ½ cup chopped celery. Arrange ¼ cup pecan halves across the top. Chill thoroughly. Cut into cubes and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise and whole pecans.

TUNA FISH A LA KING: Cut green peppers into thin strips to make 1 cup. Saute the peppers in 4 tablespoons butter until tender. Remove the peppers, and blend 2 tablespoons flour with the hot fat, then gradually add 2 cups milk and stir constantly until the sauce is thick and creamy. Season with ½ teaspoon salt and a few grains pepper. Add the green pepper strips and the contents of 1-pound can tuna, flaked. Heat slowly and serve at once on toast.

* * *

VEGETABLE SALAD—One cup cooked green beans, 1 cup cooked diced carrots, ½ cup diced celery, 2 tablespoons chopped onions, 2 tablespoons chopped green peppers, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, ½ cup salad dressing.

Mix and chill ingredients. Serve in bowl lined with lettuce.

GRILLED MUSHROOMS—1½ pounds large mushrooms, 6 slices bacon, 2 tablespoons finely chopped onions, 2 tablespoons finely chopped celery, ½ teaspoon paprika.

Wash and scrape mushrooms. Place in shallow pan. Sprinkle with onions, celery and paprika. Arrange bacon on top. Broil until mushrooms have become brown. Turn and brown other sides. Baste frequently with bacon drippings. Carefully arrange on serving platter and garnish with parsley.

SUMMER SALAD DRESSING—½ cup thick French dressing, 2 tablespoons chili sauce, 2 tablespoons catsup, 1 tablespoon chopped sweet pickles, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Mix ingredients. Chill and serve on lettuce or vegetable salads.

ROMAN PUDDING—1 package lemon flavored gelatin mixture, 2 cups boiling water, 1½ cups seeded fresh or canned cherries, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1-3 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon almond extract, ½ cup whipped cream.

Pour water over gelatin mixture and stir until dissolved. Add cherries, lemon juice, sugar and extract. Mix well and cool until a little thick. Beat until frothy and add cream. Pour into mold and chill until stiff.

GINGER DROP CAKES—½ cup fat, 1 cup dark brown sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup sour or sweet milk, ½ cup molasses, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon mace, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2½ cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder.

Cream fat and sugar. Add all rest of ingredients and beat three minutes. Half fill greased muffin pans and bake 20 minutes in moderately slow oven. Cool and frost.

POTATO ROLLS—Boil and mash 6 large potatoes. Add 1 tablespoon melted butter, 2 eggs, well beaten, salt and pepper, and a grating of nutmeg. Shape in small rolls, brush with melted butter and bake on a buttered dish in a hot oven for about 10 minutes, until the potatoes are browned.

* * *

BRAISED CELERY—Cut a bunch of celery into small pieces and mix with a sliced onion, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley and 1½ cups stock. Bake in a covered, buttered casserole for one hour in a moderate oven.

TEA PUNCH—Pour a cup of hot tea infusion over a cup of sugar and as soon as the sugar is dissolved add ¾ cup orange juice, 1-3 cup lemon juice; strain into a punch bowl over a large piece of ice. Just before serving add a pint of ginger ale, a pint of charged water and a few slices of orange. For the tea infusion use 2 teaspoons of tea and 1¼ cups of boiling water.

Another delicious tea punch is made by mixing 3 cups orange juice, a cup of lemon juice, with a cup of crushed pineapple or pineapple juice, a cup of raspberry syrup, and 1½ cups tea infusion. Boil 1¼ cups sugar and a cup hot water five minutes and add. Turn into a punch bowl over a large block of ice. Chill thoroughly. Just before serving add a quart of charged water.

STUFFED EGG AND TOMATO SALAD—Six hard-cooked eggs, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon vinegar, ¾ teaspoon salt, 4 tomatoes.

Now divide the dough in half and cut each piece to fit a small pie tin. Place one piece in the pan, brush with butter and place the other piece on top. Bake in hot oven—450 degrees F.—for 15 to 20 minutes until light brown.

BAKED HAM AND BANANAS—Have a slice of ham cut 1 inch thick. Soak in lukewarm water about one hour. Rub the ham with brown sugar and mustard and arrange in shallow baking dish or plate. Pour ½ cup water around the ham. Cook in moderate oven 45 minutes, basting frequently. Using orange juice for basting improves the flavor greatly. Cut 3 bananas in halves lengthwise and arrange around the ham. Return to the oven for five minutes to brown.

cornmeal, pepper, 5 cups boiling water, 1 cup grated cheese.

Cook the onions in the drippings for 10 minutes. Add the tomatoes, 1 teaspoon of salt and a little pepper, and cook 10 minutes longer. Sprinkle the cornmeal slowly into the boiling water, add the 2 teaspoons of salt, stir constantly and cook for 15 minutes. Into a greased baking dish place alternate layers of the mixtures and sprinkle each layer with the cheese, reserving some of the cheese for the top layer. Bake about 25 minutes in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit. Serve from the dish.

PEANUT BREAD FOR SANDWICHES—Three cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅔ cup sugar, ⅔ cup broken shelled roasted peanuts, 1 egg, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1⅓ cups milk.

Mix ingredients. Pour into greased loaf pan and let stand 15 minutes. Bake on hour in slow oven. Cut in thin slices and spread with butter. Arrange sandwich fashion.

Mix fruits. Chill. Arrange individual portions in small jelly glasses. Top with lettuce leaves and salad dressing. Cover with waxed papers held in place with rubber bands.

FRESH VEGETABLE SALAD—Two cups diced tomatoes, 1 cup sliced cucumbers, ½ cup diced celery, 2 tablespoons chopped onions, 1 tablespoon chopped green peppers, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons French dressing.

Mix ingredients in glass bowl. Cover and chill. Serve on lettuce and add more dressing.

MAPLE SUGAR CAKE—One-half cup butter, 1 cup soft maple sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon lemon extract, ½ cup milk, 1½ cups flour (sifted), ½ cup corn starch (sifted), 2 teaspoons baking powder, 3 egg whites, beaten.

Cream butter and sugar. Add vanilla, lemon extract, milk, flour and cornstarch. Beat two minutes. Add rest of ingredients. Bake in two-layer cake pans. Frost with any desired white or yellow frosting.

MEAT AND VEGETABLE SALAD—Toss lightly together 2 cups boiled ham or pork, diced, a cup boiled diced potatoes, ½ cup peas, 2 chopped pimientoes, ½ cup celery, diced, 2 sweet pickles finely diced, and ½ cup mayonnaise. When nicely blended, garnish with additional mayonnaise and sweet pickles cut in quarters, lengthwise.

FRESH STRAWBERRY AND PINEAPPLE SALAD—Sprinkle 1 pint of fresh hulled and halved strawberries with ½ tablespoon lemon juice and 1½ tablespoons confectioners' sugar. Add ¾ cup fresh pineapple, diced and sweetened, or ¾ cup canned pineapple, diced and drained. Arrange on crisp lettuce. Serve with dressing made by folding mayonnaise into whipped cream. Sprinkle with chopped pistachio nuts, if desired.

TOMATO AND PINEAPPLE SALAD—Arrange 4 sliced tomatoes on lettuce that has been well washed and crisped. Pile pineapple on each slice, using 1 cup of shredded pineapple. Sprinkle with nuts. Chill. Garnish with 1 cup of mayonnaise. Serves six.

CHOCOLATE FLUFF—Two squares unsweetened chocolate, 6 eggs, beaten separately, 1 cup powdered sugar, a dash of cinnamon, 1 teaspoon vanila.

Cut the chocolate into small pieces and place in a small bowl. Set this in a saucepan containing a little cup of hot water. Heat over a low flame, taking care that no water gets into the melting chocolate. Beat the yolks of the eggs until light and foamy, and gradually add the powdered sugar. Add the melted chocolate slowly to the beaten yolk mixture; the heat will cook the mixture slightly. Set aside. Whip the egg whites until very dry, and very stiff. Fold the dry whites into the chocolate mixture lightly; flavor with a dash of cinnamon, which is a clever way of emphasizing the chocolate note, and add the vanilla.

Now pile the Chocolate Delight into the sherbet glasses roughly, and put into the refrigerator to cool, until wanted.

CREAM ORANGE—One egg yolk, well beaten, ¾ cup orange juice, ¼ cup thin cream (or evaporated milk), Sugar if desired.

Blend beaten egg yolk, orange juice and cream or evaporated milk. Sweeten to taste and serve at once. This is an excellent mid-meal or bed-time drink for children, or underweights. Serves one.

STRAWBERRY ICE—One quart water, 2 cups strawberry pulp, 1½ cups sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Make a syrup of the sugar and water by boiling together for five minutes, cool and then add strawberry pulp and lemon juice. Strain and freeze in six parts of ice to one part salt. This gives a wonderfully smooth texture.

CARDINALS' RECORD AT STAKE TODAY

IF BILL M'KECHNIE'S Boston Braves can follow up their victories of Wednesday and yesterday in St. Louis by tripping the Cardinals again today they will place in the National League records something that has not been written there this season. The warriors of Gabby Street will have been defeated three times in succession. Street's club holds the distinction of being the only one in either of the major circuits that has not yet lost three games in a row. Even the mighty A's stumbled to that extent in their second, third and fourth contests of the year.

Gabby Street

As showing the remarkable consistency of the Cardinals in the 1931 race, this is only the fourth time they have dropped even two consecutive games. The Pirates gave them that experience twice, both times on the St. Louis grounds, first on April 26 and 27, and next on May 27 and 28. The Redbirds' only other consecutive defeats came when they lost to the Phillies on May 11 and then, after four idle days, were beaten by the Giants on May 16.

JOHN M'GRAW is one manager who has not found it a successful system to keep shooting lefthanders at the Pirates. Though the Giants won out yesterday in extra innings it was only after the starting southpaw had been derricked. McGraw started lefthanders against the Bucs in all three meetings of the season up to today without success.

The Rovers beat Clarence Mitchell in the first instance, defeated Bill Walker and forced his retirement in the second, and drove Carl Hubbell out in the ninth round yesterday. Though tabbed as weak against forkhanders, the locals up to today were only one game short of having defeated enemy southpaws as often as they had lost to them, the count being seven victories against eight reverses.

MANAGER ENS and Capt. Traynor came in for some unjust criticism from a portion of the crowd yesterday when Traynor was caught in what was misconstrued as an attempt to steal second base with one out in the eleventh inning.

The score at the time was 8 to 5, and trying to steal second when three runs were needed to tie was branded as terrible baseball. That's what it would have been if such had been Traynor's intent. But Pie wasn't trying to steal. The hit-and-run play was on, but the Giant battery outguessed the Bucs. Berly pitched the ball where Grantham couldn't reach it, and Traynor was cut down at the midway.

THE SURPRISING DRIVE of the aroused Reds has been carried to a count of eight wins in their last nine games. They took three straight from the Phils after losing the opener, three out of four from the Braves and the first two from the Robins. Perhaps they'll travel the other way again later as fast as they have been coming forward since Harvey Hendrick joined the club and gave it new punch and spirit, but for the time being at least they have stirred up a lot of unexpected trouble. Incidentally, Silas Johnson, who beat Dazzy Vance and Jack Quinn yesterday, continues to be Cincinnati's best pitcher, not excepting Red Lucas. Of the Reds' 17 victories Johnson has won five, and he has lost only one of his last five games.

Dan Hanley

DAN HANLEY, the big fullback who was dropped from the student roll at Notre Dame last February on account of scholastic deficiencies, will not be lost to the Irish football team next season after all, according to official information which Jim Costin has received from Hunk Anderson, the new head coach.

Dan has been studying hard since his February failure and will enter Notre Dame's summer school to get the marks required to make him eligible to re-enter the university next fall and to play on the football team. Frank Butler, the spare center, who was called home early in the year, also will be back to serve as substitute for Capt. Tommy Yarr.

AS ANDERSON SEES things right now, Notre Dame's first eleven will be made up of Koskey and Mahoney at the ends, Culver and Kurth at the tackles, Harris and Terlaak at the guards, Yarr at center, Jaskwich at quarterback, Schwartz and Sheeketski or Cronin at the halves and Hanley, Lucats or Staab at fullback.

The second team will have Host and Devore, ends; Krause and Kozak, tackles; Greeney and Pierce, guards; Gorman, center; Murphy, quarterback; Koken and Sheeketski or Cronin, halfbacks, and Hanley, Lucats or Staab, fullback. Anderson predicts the first-string line will be one of the best that Notre Dame ever had, and a good line, of course, practically assures a good backfield.

THE NEW COACH at Notre Dame will have Jack Chevigny and Ike Voedisch as assistants. The freshman coach next fall will be Clarence Kaplan, reserve halfback during the last three years, assisted by Johnny Fredericks. Anderson believes Pitt and Carnegie Tech will be stronger next fall than in 1930 and expects to have plenty of trouble with both of them. In addition to renewing their contracts with Pitt, Carnegie and Southern California, the Irish, it is said, have reached an agreement with Yale for a home-and-home series to start in 1932 or 1933.

ONE OF THE OUTSTANDING features of the year's big track and field meets has been the work of the quarter-milers. Ben Eastman and Vic Williams. Veteran experts are listing them among the greatest 440 stars ever developed, along with Ted Meredith, Maxey Long, Wendall Baker, Frank Shea and other luminaries of the past, who broke 48 records.

The performance to stand out most impressively was that of Eastman, of Southern California, in being only two yards back of Williams when the latter equaled Meredith's world record of 47.4. Eastman is only 19 and a sophomore with little experience, and has two years more of competition and development in which to smash the world mark.

PENN STATE will be one of the leading eastern entrants in the coming championship intercollegiate golf tournament to be held on the Olympic Fields course in Chicago June 22 to 27.

Johnny Murray

The Nittany Lions have lost only one dual match in two years and will have a veteran team in the field. Capt. Johnny Murray, of Grove City, is the leader of the team and has been a consistent winner for two seasons.

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA almost monopolized the places on the Lion golf squad this year. In addition to Murray there are Freddie Brand, Jr., of Sewickley, captain-elect in both golf and basketball; Hugo Bezdek, Jr., who resided in Pittsburgh when his father was manager of the Pirates; Maurice Barnhart, of Greensburg, and Charles H. Williams, of Monessen, student manager. The two other members are Bill Nacios, of Throop, Pa., a sophomore who has done some of the best work turned in for State this year, and Dick Smith, of State College, a home-town product. The participation of Brand and Williams lends a distinct basketball flavor to the Lions' golf squad. Brand, who will be captain in both sports next year, has been the regular varsity basketball center for two seasons, and Williams, who was graduated this year, was a regular guard for two campaigns.

Unless the boys battle to another draw decision, which is not at all impossible or even improbable, the City Scholastic League baseball title will be settled at Forbes this evening as Schenley, defending champions of Section I and South Hills, challengers of Section II, clash in the fourth game of the annual title series.

Last week the rivals started off by playing to a 2-2 tie in 10 innings. Then South Hills nosed out the Bellefielders in the second game, 4 to 3, and on Tuesday, the issue was tossed into a tie as Schenley socked the Tunnelites 7 to 1.

This evening, after the Pirates and Giants have finished their big league tussle, the schoolboys will rip at each other hammer and tongs, to say nothing of balls and bats, curves, drops, strikes and maybe a home run or two.

Earl Stratton and Bill Lentz, the mound aces of the rivals, are groomed for the deciding tussle. Both have pitched splendidly to date, Stratton, the Bellefield ace, holding a slight edge due to the seven-run attack launched by his teammates in the victory of Tuesday.

South Hills is making its third City League title bid of the school year. The South Hills football team lost to Westinghouse for the gridiron title and the basketballers were beaten by Schenley for the court crown.

The Tunnelites hope the spell will be broken on the diamond.

BELL, JACOBS NEAR FINAL

BALTIMORE, June 12.—(AP.)—Berkeley Bell, Texas; Eddie Jacobs, University of Pittsburgh and defending champion; Ed Yoemans, Washington, and Ted Easton, of Stanford University, have fought their way to the semi-finals of the Maryland state tennis tournament.

Bell, seeded number one, disposing of Elmer Rudy, Baltimore, 6-8, 6-1, 6-2, and then beat Bob Ryan, of Yale, 6-2, 6-4.

Yoemans put out Billy Jacobs, also of the University of Pittsburgh, 8-6, 6-1, while Easton disposed of Phil Goldsborough, Baltimore, 6-3, 6-3. Eddie Jacobs defeated M. Page Andrews, of Baltimore, 6-3, 6-2, in the other quarter final.

COLLEGE STARS WIN BRIDES

By JESS CARVER

There is no depression to speak of in the college athlete marriage business. In fact, times are booming.

No fewer than three well known tri-state district collegians have announced their marriages during the past couple days. The most prominent bobbed up in Beaver Falls, when it became known that Earl Ewing, Geneva College's crackerjack halfback and hurdler, the most valuable individual player in district varsity ranks last fall, was married April 16 to Miss Grace Simons, of Beaver Falls.

Pretty Dorothy Prosser, of Carnegie, a Westminster coed, didn't fall for a football player, but she did land a sprinter. She married Ken Heimer, a 10-second man. The wedding was last December. Another track star, a hammer thrower this time, Byron McCloskey, of Grove City, and Miss Elizabeth Weatherby, a Grover coed, announced they had been married for a week.

The Tipoff

Today's blurb on rising young men concerns the very estimable Joe Bach, Duquesne University's line coach, or as he probably prefers to be called, assistant athletic director.

The former Notre Dame lineman—pardon, star lineman—was poking about in the university library t other afternoon, a day or so before Duquesne's commencement. The dean of women of the school, who observed Joe's bulk and took him for one of the athletes, simply laid him cold with this crack:

"Ah, young man, you get your degree tomorrow, don't you? Isn't that just fine?"

Bob Smith, Tech's star basketballer, is recovering very nicely indeed after an abdominal operation. Smitty is confined in Presbyterian Hospital. Dr. Decker, who annually cuts pounds and pounds of local college appendices and such, performed the operation on Smith.

When a lot of us were still kids a gent named Elmer Jacobs was pitching pretty good baseball for the Pirates. This same Elmer is tossing 'em for the San Francisco Seals in the Pacific Coast League at present, along with his young son. The point of this paragraph is that the elder Jacobs yesterday pitched a one-hit, shutout game against Seattle.

Keystone Golfers Set Tourney Date

The tournament, an 18-hole medal play affair, will take place at the St. Clair Country Club.

The Shady Side Alumni baseball team defeated the Shady Side nine yesterday in the annual game, 8 to 7. The Alumni took an early lead and held it throughout.

MAX PUNCHES RING AIDES

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, Pa., June 12.—(AP.)—Five hundred persons saw Max Schmeling, world heavyweight champion, go through his ninth day of boxing yesterday in preparation for his fight with W. L. (Young) Stribling at Cleveland July 3.

The champion boxed two rounds with George Panka, Pittsburgh heavyweight; two with Tiny Debolt, of Cleveland, and two with Tony Marullo, of New Orleans.

GEAUGA LAKE, O., June 12.—Carpenters and electricians held sway in Young Stribling's training camp here yesterday, preparing the scene for the heavyweight challenger's night training for his 15-round title bout with Max Schmeling in Cleveland, July 3.—

LINDSTROM — PITCHER SPENCER — CATCHER PHILLIPS

With the bases filled and one out in the eleventh inning at Forbes Field yesterday, Travis Jackson chopped the ball in front of the plate and Lindstrom scored the run that broke the tie when the Pirate battery was unable to field the ball in time to get him, as pictured. Two more runs followed and the Giants defeated the Pirates, who came back to tally once.

Time of game—3:30.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The celebrated Oakland district of our great city is in a big uproar these June afternoons largely on account of the presence in that section of the interesting Giants. The New Yorkers yesterday evened up the four-game series with the Pirates by winning the second contest of the set in 11 rounds. The third clash is on for this afternoon. Remy Kremer will oppose Clarence Mitchell or Fred Fitzsimmons on the mound.

A Hal Chase play by Bill Terry in the ninth inning yesterday stood out this morning as the main reason why the Buccos are not in fifth place and in a spot that might be called advantageous. Memphis Bill had to have a lot of nerve to link with his cleverness as he reeled off a play that took a lot of wind out of the Buccaneer sails when it seemed the home club would put over the winning run.

TIE IN EIGHTH

A courageous fight from behind saw the Buccos reach a deadlock in the eighth. They held the Giants runless in the ninth and Capt. Traynor led off in the home half with what looked like a significant base on balls.

Carl Hubbell, slender lefthander, had been doing a nice job of hurling up to this time, but Acting Manager Bancroft decided that Fogarty Knoll was no place for Hubbell under the trying circumstances, Adam Comorosky being the next hitter.

John Berly came out to face Commy, who apparently had instructions to bunt. Well, Commy bunted a little pop less than halfway down the first base line. Tearing in at a fearful clip, Terry snagged the rocket in one hand before it could touch the ground. His momentum carried him almost on his nose, but he recovered and all but followed through with a double play.

The big point was that if Terry had failed in his snatch effort, runners would have been on second and first with none out, and you know what that means for the home team in the ninth. As it was Berly turned back the Pirates and he carried on to victory in the eleventh.

TERRY HITS HARD

Terry's fine hit had a big part in the ultimate victory. The Giants filled up the sacks in the eleventh with none out and aided by a fluke tap off Jackson's bat

SENATORS CONTINUE FAST PACE

LEADS OF A'S AND CARDS SLICED

Associated Press.

As long as the Washington Senators continue to play the kind of baseball they have been displaying for the past month or so, Philadelphia's Athletics are not going to make a runaway of the American League pennant race. The A's have compiled a remarkable record so far, running up 35 victories to 12 defeats, but the Senators have remained right on their heels.

Washington's average today was .660, no mean mark in any league, and the Senators were only three and one-half games behind after six straight victories.

A'S LEAD CUT

The Senators clipped a full game from Philadelphia's lead yesterday by trouncing Cleveland, 12 to 5. They piled up 15 hits in effective bunches. The only drawback was a slight injury to Joe Cronin, star young shortstop, which may keep him out a day or two.

The A's took their worst beating since early in the season from the St. Louis Browns and their rookie pitcher, Wallace Hebert, the 19-year-old moundsman, making his first major league start, held the champions to seven hits to win, 8 to 2.

The margin the St. Louis Cardinals hold over their National League rivals, Chicago and New York, also was clipped to 3½ games yesterday as Socks Seibold held the Cards to four hits and gave Boston a 3-to-0 victory.

GIANTS, CUBS WIN

Bob Smith gave the Cubs some highly effective mound work and Chicago beat Philadelphia, 4 to 2, despite Chuck Klein's fifteenth homer of the season. The Giants had to go 11 innings to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates but came through with a three-run rally at the finish to win, 8 to 6. Bob O'Farrell, Giant catcher, drove in the final run with the one thousandth hit of his major league career.

Cincinnati and Brooklyn also waged an 11-inning battle, the Reds winning, 2 to 1. Silas Johnson, stocky young Cincinnati hurler, got the better of Dazzy Vance and Jack Quinn on the mound.

TRIO OF CLUBS SET CADDIE TEST DATES

Caddiemaster Jim Bruno, of the Alcoma Country Club; Caddiemaster Bill Stocker, of the Stanton Heights Golf Club, and Caddiemaster Walter Caudell, of the Valley Heights Golf Club, yesterday set the dates for their preliminary qualifying test for the fourth annual Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph West Penn junior amateur golf tournament for the William Randolph Hearst Trophy and other prizes, which is to be held at the Schenley Park municipal links on Tuesday, June 30.

Stocker will qualify his eight men Monday morning of next week, Bruno will repeat on the trick on next Tuesday, while Caudell has set a week from Monday for his round.

The tournament, of course, is not closed to caddies alone—any boy who has an amateur standing as defined by the U. S. G. A. rules, who is 19 years of age or under, and who is not attending an institution of learning above preparatory school grades, may enter—that includes the caddies who are 17 years of age and under. Once a caddie has attained his eighteenth birthday he cannot caddie for money and retain his amateur status.

Entries are rolling in fast, for the lists close on Thursday, June 25, with the Golf Tournament Editor. Clip your entry today, fill it in, have it signed and send it immediately to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

KREMER READY FOR GIANTS

they put over three tallies and won, 8 to 5.

Heinie Meine and Hubbell waged a fine fight through eight rounds. Meine came out to make room for Pinch-Hitter Howard Groskloss in the eighth. Glenn Spencer looked like a champion in the ninth and tenth, but he lost his control in the eleventh and away went the contest. A walk to Lindstrom, single by Terry, a sock in the back to Ott, a topped hit by Jackson, a long fly by Vergez and O'Farrell's single gave the Giants three runs.

Groskloss boosted his stock as a big leaguer as he batted for Meine. Howard clipped a double to left and eventually scored the tying run on Fred Bennett's single.

So don't be surprised if you see the Pittsburgh boy started as a Pirate regular in the not-too-distant future. He looks like a very fine prospect.

Bennett was the batting hero of the game with four rollicking hits, including a double, but Eddie Phillips was not far behind him with a triple, a double and a single. The hits of the Pittsburgh catcher were very timely.

TUG PHILLIPS BEATS CUBAN

CHICAGO, June 12.—(INS.)—Tug Phillips, Pittsburgh welterweight, surprised boxing fans here last night by winning over Relampago Saguero, Cuban champion. Phillips was subbing for Jackie Fields.

Phillips' crouch and his weaving style appeared to puzzle the Cuban, who clinched at every opportunity. Saguero appeared in the ring with heavy plasters over his eyes, but three rounds of pecking at them with his left convinced Phillips there was no weakness there, so he shifted his attack to the body.

WOMEN'S GOLF EVENT TODAY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania is staging a one-day tournament today at the Stanton Heights Golf Club. A large field is competing in the event, and some good golf is anticipated inasmuch as the visiting stars are opposed to Mrs. Frank E. Campbell, West Penn woman champion, playing over her home layout.

Last night a Caddie Welfare Association, a co-operative organization bringing the caddie and club members closer together, was formed at the Valley Heights Golf Club. The caddies accepted a suggestion that they pay dues of 10 cents a week, or a little more than $5 a year, for their own protection.

Credit is to be given for attendance, efficiency, deportment, conduct and cleanliness and Caddiemaster Walter Caudell is to rate the boys on a merit system. In return, the club treasury is to pay interest on the money it holds for the boys, and to pay benefits for all illnesses and accidents.

After a full day's golf, the boys, 65 of them, gathered at the banquet table and, after eating heartily, formed their organization. Speeches were made by Dr. W. H. Thompson, president of Valley Heights, on the moral effect of a caddie organization, showing that character is the basis of a man's career; by Edward Barker, chairman of the caddie welfare committee; William Bremer, of the committee; W. C. Brown, who was the instigator of the work, and James Werntz.

The club is to pay a prize of $10 for the best caddie this year, and will increase it $5 each year until a $50 top prize is attained.

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

WASHINGTON, June 12.—I see Eddie Collins goes on the inactive list after 25 years. I can remember when he was $40,000 worth of Connie Mack's $100,000 infield. When Eddie guarded the middle sack it wasn't second base—it was Verdun. And now he is a retired veteran at 44. That should make old timers like Rabbit Maranville start taking cod liver oil. Rabbit was a drummer boy in the Battle of Chickamauga and he was playing with the old White Sox at the time of the Chicago fire. I don't see how he stays in the Braves' lineup today without two walking sticks. They say Eddie Collins will not assist Connie Mack in his strategy. That's like Edison calling in an electrician to show him how to turn on a light.

By TOM BIRKS

With practically all of the sandlot leaders coming together this evening, fans in the capital are promised some fine games.

Two big games are carded in the City Loop. Homewood will meet the J. L. Thomas nine at the Playgrounds. In order to keep in step with Dormont for the title the Bollmen must stop the hard-fighting Bloomfielders.

Then, on the North Side, the Buicks will entertain the Civics at Pleasant Valley. A battle between Dunsky and Art Rooney should be worth going a long way to watch.

CARDS FACE SAINTS

The outstanding battle of the Steel City League will be flashed this evening at Lesh Park. St. Elizabeth is leading the loop with the East End Cardinals in second place, and the Cards must stop Danko's fast-stepping outfit to stay in the race. The Cardinals did themselves a good turn by defeating Snee Dairy, but St. Elizabeth with five wins and only one defeat, is going to be hard to beat out.

The Steel City League is the best loop of its class ever organized. The Brodericks, East End Cards, Casino Club, St. Elizabeth, Pasquale and the Snee Dairy all are in the race for the title.

Now that Reliance and Homestead Aces have each dropped a game in the West Penn loop, the fans will watch with interest the battle between the Aces and Lifers for the leadership. George Miller and his gang will get a severe test this evening at Turtle Creek, when Dutch Winters and his Community nine are met.

Turtle Creek has enough class to put a crimp into the Miller plan of copping the title. While the Reliance team is trying to stay in the front, Jack Fertig will try to put the Aces back in the win column by stopping the Martin club at Garfield.

DORMONT STRONG

Bill Doak's spitter is going to work havoc with the teams in the City League, and teamed up with Leo Carroll, Abe Martin and George McFarland, it is hard to see just how the South Hills entry is going to lose out.

Well posted fans feel that pitching will win the City loop flag, and there is little doubt that at the present time Dormont has by far the best pitching staff in the circuit.

The Homestead Grays play in Ambridge this evening.

BELL TO BATTLE THOMAS HERE

Archie Bell, of New York, who has beaten Jackie Rodgers and Willie Davies and lost to Midget Wolgast here, will return next Thursday night to box Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight, in the 10-round main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale. He will take the place of Frankie Genaro, flyweight championship claimant, who cancelled the match with Thomas because of illness.

The Meyers Bowl today completed its card for its show next Monday night by signing Joe Walters, Negro middleweight, of Springfield, O., to box Indian Tiger West in the first eight-round bout and Jackie Murray, local Negro welterweight, to oppose Eddie Brinkman, of Wheeling, in the six-round opener. Eddie Brannon boxes Sammy Dorfman, of New York, in the 10-round windup, and Harry Fierro, of Chicago, and Mose Butch, of Oakland, bantams, will meet in the eight-round semi-final.

Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, is recovering from an operation performed last Tuesday in the Citizens Hospital there and his fight with Jackie Rodgers, at East Liverpool, O., scheduled for next Tuesday night, is off. Tommy Rios and Freddie Edwards, welterweights, will box in their place.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Dropped sprawling for a count of nine with almost the first punch of the fight, a left hook to the jaw, Young Rudy, of Charleroi, came back to put up an interesting battle with Tiger Joe Randall, local Negro welterweight, in the windup of the card of four eight-round battles at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night. At the finish, the judges disagreed, and Referee Al Grayber's vote gave the bout to Rudy. Judge I. K. Meininger had voted for a draw and Judge Jock Simco for Randall.

Randall really was the winner. He did the harder and cleaner hitting and carried all but the third round, which went to Rudy, and the fourth, which was even, and had the near-knockout in the first round to boot for an edge. Low blows by both men marked the battle, and they fell over each other during a mixup in the final round. Rudy scaled 146 pounds against 148¼ for Randall.

KNOCKDOWNS GALORE

Knockdowns marked every bout and it was a real action card throughout, witnessed by a fairly large crowd. Meyer Frager, of Chicago, 136¼, makes his local debut, got a tough break when the boxing commission ordered Referee Joe Keally to halt his semi-final bout with Ray Collins, of Erie, at the end of the sixth round, after the bell had saved Frager at the count of nine. He had been floored at the end of the first round for no count and late in the third for nine, and when the order was given to cease firing, he appeared to have fully recovered his bearings and to have a good chance of going the remaining two rounds.

Frager was cool under fire at all times and put up a good fight, although he didn't win a round, the knockdown at the finish wiping out his only margin in the opening session, and Collins had to put up one of his good fights to beat him. Both weighed 136¼.

Jack Tracey, local Negro, gave blond Jimmy Taylor, of Cleveland, a pasting in the second bout, winning every round and dropping him three times, once for no count, another time for three as Taylor claimed a low punch, and in the seventh round for eight. Both weighed 161¼.

LYLE BEATS BRETSCH

George Bretsch, of the North Side, making his first appearance following a layoff since last fall, was down for nine in the second round and barely went the route with rugged and aggressive Ray Lyle, a good club fighter from Akron, in the opener. Bretsch weighed 148 pounds and Lyle 151½.

Joe Keally alternated with Grayber as referee. Norman Borland and Steve Russell were the timers, Harry Klaas acted as announcer and Dr. J. W. McMeans was the commission physician.

BELL-THOMAS NEXT

Archie Bell, clever New York bantamweight, has been signed to box Jimmy Thomas, local Negro, in the 10-round main go next Thursday night. Thomas was to have met Frankie Genaro, who canceled because of illness.

Between Rounds

Matchmaker Jules Beck is working on a Joe Walters-Jimmy Guthrie bout to back up his card at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night. He already has Eddie Brannon subbing for Battling Gizzy against Sammy Dorfman, of New York, in the main bout, and Harry Fierro, of Chicago, and Mose Butch, in the semi-final.

Young Corbett boxes Bobby LaSalle at Los Angeles Friday night of next week.

Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion, boxes Spug Myers at Janesville, Wis., next Monday night.

ENID WILSON WINS GOLF LAURELS

PORTMARNOCK, June 12. (INS)—Miss Enid Wilson today won the British ladies golf championship by defeating Miss Wanda Morgan, 7 up and 6 to play, in the 36-hole final event of the tournament today.

Miss Wilson played a conservative, steady game throughout. She was one up at the end of the first 18 holes, played during the morning round. Miss Morgan showed signs of fatigue on the afternoon round, and Miss Wilson slowly drew away from her.

Miss Wilson, who added the British title to her English native crown, plans to play in both the United States and Canadian women's golf championships this summer.

Her father, a Manchester physician, had offered her either an automobile or a golfing trip to America if she won the British championship and she chose the latter.

Tentative arrangements call for Mrs. R. D. Porter, who was runner-up to Miss Wilson in the English championship last year, to accompany and chaperon Miss Wilson.

More than 500 men and women athletes, representing turnvereins throughout the tri-state district, will open their thirtieth annual athletic tournament in the Homestead Athletic Field tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. The Homestead Turnverein will be in charge of the gymnastic and track and field meet. The tournament will be concluded Sunday.

Dan O'Leary, Noted Walker, Visitor Here

Dan O'Leary, famous walker of Chicago, was a visitor in Pittsburgh today and will circle the bases at Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon before the start of the Pirate-Giant game.

O'Leary came here from Buffalo where he circled the bases in the International League Park of that city six times in five minutes. O'Leary, who has passed the 90-year mark in age, hopes to live 100 years. He has been doing the stunt in baseball parks throughout the country for years.

Campolo Kayos Big Bill Hartwell

NEWARK, N. J., June 12.—(AP)—Victorio Campolo, Argentine heavyweight, stopped Big Bill Hartwell, Kansas City Negro, in the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout at Clark Field here last night. Campolo weighed 232; Hartwell 223.

The referee halted the battle early in the third round when Hartwell apparently was no longer able to protect himself.

U. S. GOLFERS RETURN

NEW YORK, June 12. (INS)—Tommy Armour, the Detroit golfer who won the British Open tournament, will arrive here today from England. He will be accompanied by Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell, who were players in the tourney.

ZIEGFELD STARS ON RADIO

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor

Flo Ziegfeld's world premiere at a downtown theater next Monday night is to have one of those so-called "Hollywood openings" in which the stars say hello to the listening public and the announcer reaches out with a crooked cane to snare celebrities as they pass through the lobby. Louis Abel, man of a hundred names at KQV, is to supervise the broadcast starting about 7:30 o'clock. If everything goes well you will hear Helen Morgan, Ruth Etting, Gladys Glad, Harry Brown and the impresario, Mr. Ziegfeld, in person. Milton Tully stopped at the desk while we were in Chicago and left a note saying that he will leave NBC temporarily to travel it, musical comedy. We heard from another source that Mil was very much up in the air when the plane he was flying from New York made a forced landing near Philadelphia.

About three years ago we had the pleasure of introducing Paul and Lloyd Waner to a WJAS microphone following a colorful game at Forbes Field. Unprepared for a talk of any kind, the boys surprised everyone with a sparkling spontaneity. We know you will like "Big Poison" and "Little Poison" on KQV at 9:30 tonight.

The things we wouldn't miss . . . Jessica Dragonette singing "La Golondrina" (The Swallow) on WCAE at 8 and the KDKA concert at 9:30 with a trumpet duet of "Indian Love Call."

Question a Day:

Is it true that "Mystery House" will return to the air soon?—F. W., Oakland.

Answer — Nothing definite. Harvey Hayes and Bernardine Flinn are scheduled to appear in the new series if it gets under way.

Behind the 'Bars'

Jack Shawn, of WWVA, at Wheeling, was making arrangements to broadcast a special concert from the State Penitentiary at Moundsville, W. Va. Walking through a cell block he heard a rich Negro bass.

"Say," spied Shawn, "We like your voice so well we're going to put it on the radio this Saturday."

"No, sah," answered the prisoner, "I'se not goin' on no radio. I'se workin' on parole and if dey's finds out I can sing for de radio, dere's no tellin' when deyse let me out."

THE LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, June 12.—The English Derby—and by the way, Jenkins, remind me to tear up that ticket—swept away a tradition and established a precedent, so far as the radio is concerned.

Dear old British calm, believed to be as secure on the microphones as educational talks, was the tradition that went by the boards. It disappeared when R. C. Lyle, a hitherto unruffled commentator, became so excited as to shout a little profanity. He shouted this not once, but twice.

Such agitation of the British air it has never been equaled in America really amounts to a revolution. It shows that the American style of conveying some measure of excitement to a sports broadcast has penetrated England, along with jazz and brass-railed bars. For years with accuracy and a calm and poise, by gad, that refused to be shaken, refused to be shaken, that is, until Cameronian began to nose out his rivals.

Where the broadcasters gossip they say that the airing of the Kentucky Derby in England, with its thrilling account by the expert Clem McCarthy was chiefly responsible for the new order in horse race description. It showed British announcers that pep added to accuracy could make the easy chair just so much more inviting when the bally old home stretch is reached. I wonder if Sir John Reith was listening. And what he thinks about it.

As for the precedent, the Derby of 1931 goes down in history as the first major sports attraction to be seen by television. It marked the beginning of a day when all outstanding sports events will be witnessed as well as heard by the millions who go down to the radio sea in armchairs.

To England falls the glory of showing the way—showing the way to an audience said to have been 5,000 persons. Here our televisioners are still marking time so far as pointing their cameras at sport spectacles is concerned. They are experimenting with individuals, offering excerpts from dramas, parading before the eyes a vast army of entertainers, anxious to get in on the ground floor of television at no expense, as yet, to the producers. They are receiving large quantities of news space for their efforts; selling, undoubtedly a large number of sets.

But television will not get unusual stimulation—a stimulation which inspires the unstrapping of the thinning wallet—in America until its high priests can offer some outstanding sports event. My crystal ball tells me we shall soon have just that. The wizards in the laboratories, the showmen in the studios now have an example before them. They'll have to speed up their plans or we're just a false alarmist and should be clapped in the hoosegow.

No More Shaving! No Razor!

No Bother!

1 The Beard!
2 Snow Applied!
3 The Result!

One—Two—Three and the beard is off without a razor!

Sensational Powder

Now Makes Shaving Unnecessary

SNOW

The FACIAL Depilatory

Think of it—the quickest and slickest, closest and smoothest "shave" you ever had—without using a razor. A face so smooth you never knew you had such soft skin. Instead of shaving every day, use this delightful discovery once or twice a week. It "breaks" the whiskers off right down below the skin while a razor cuts them off above the surface, so you just can't help but look your best. Why not, when you can do so without risking a penny.

MILLIONS SOLD ABROAD

Not a harsh chemical that eats off the hair but a gentle compound that makes the beard so brittle it breaks off. Thousands of men are now actually enjoying their facial glorification (which, by the way, may now be performed at right because the beard barely grows overnight). In contrast with razor shaving, SNOW tends to retard the growth of the beard and to make it much lighter. Discovered and Endorsed by European authorities as perfectly harmless. Silver Medal Winner at Strasbourg, France.

Especially Good For Tough Beards!

—WOMEN—

Women delight in this new and gentle depilatory which may be used on face or limbs with great speed and freedom from pain or irritation. A 25c package is four times larger than most others.

Girls Are Often Responsible For Lies of Boys

Why is a liar? What makes a man lie to a dear, sweet, wonderful girl who trusts him absolutely? And if he does lie, dare she trust him ever again?

All of which brings us to the sad case of Mary and Her Man. Everything was going pretty until she found he'd told her a fib. And now what can the poor girl do? Can she ever love him or believe in him again? Can she marry him, and feel that he will be faithful to her, as she would be faithful to him?

Or should that one lie be a warning to leave the Vicious Villian before it is too late?

Dear Sally:

If you had loved your man sincerely for a whole year—and then found out that he lied to you—would you ever believe in him? How can I ever be sure of him again? Will doubt always be between us if I go on and marry him?

CAUGHT IN LIES

At first, I believed this one lie which he told me, but it sounded weak, so I investigated, and found it was a lie. When I did that and I told him I knew that he had not told me the truth, he admitted it, because he knew that I was sure.

We had a bad time for a while, and he didn't know what to do, he said, so he lied about what he did do. When I found it out, and faced him, he couldn't lie out of it any more, so he didn't try.

Never, before that, did I doubt him, even when things weren't always clear to me. I had faith—love—love. I was true to him, so I expected truth from him.

He asked me to forgive him. He told me that he was perplexed and ashamed that day, so he stayed away from me, and lied to me about where he was. But Sally, I caught him in his lie, and he nearly died with shame.

HAS FAITH IN HIM

He said it was his first and last lie to me. But can I ever believe him? Do I want to believe him? Yes—oh, yes! I do! Have I had faith in him? Yes—but now I am afraid of him and his lies and his dissembling.

I am so down—so beaten! I feel so bad! Why? I am 30 years old, and for the first time I have really loved—really suffered, really put so much faith and trust in a man. He said he really intended to tell me the truth later . . . that he was miserable too . . . that he still tried to be true . . . but that lie found him out. Can I ever trust him again? Or is that lie my warning? What shall I do?

MARY.

What'll you do?

Shake yourself loose from the melodrama, sister, and come down to earth! In the first place, this terrible "faith and trust" of yours is not the Big and Noble sort of love that you imagine it to be. It is really a brand of romantic and impractical foolishness that gals who know their onions outgrow with pinafores. When you met this man of yours, you actually didn't see him as a real, flesh-and-blood human being. You insisted on making a picture of him in your own mind. . . . A picture of an impossibly perfect demi-god. And when you did that you two-timed both him and yourself . . . because no human being could ever hope to live up to that picture. . . .

Why did he lie to you? That's why! No. I'm not excusing him for that lie. But I am telling you that your efforts to smother and monopolize him—to put him on a pedestal to pry into his every thought and action—were responsible directly for it. And now you're making a Terrible Tragedy of it, and blaming him.

Stop it! Didn't you ever tell a fib yourself, when somebody pushed you into a corner you couldn't see any other way out of? If you didn't, you're certainly a remarkable young woman!

TOO INTENSE

Can you "ever trust him again?" Why not? If you're willing to stop being so fearfully intense—if you're willing to stop digging into his mind and his soul, and demanding every inch of it for yourself—if you're willing to admit to yourself that he's an independent human being, and not a part of you—and that he has a right to the ordinary freedom of having a few independent thoughts and actions of his own—if you'll stop trying to make him account to you for every moment spent away from you—then, the chances are that he'll live up to all the real, honest-to-goodness faith you'll give him.

And I'm telling you, my dear, what real love is . . . Real love doesn't smother and demand. Real love realizes that, romance to the contrary, no two people can ever be wholly one . . . and they shouldn't try to be, if they want to stay sane and healthy. It realizes that every human soul, no matter how deeply it loves or is loved, needs and is entitled to freedom, privacy, independence . . . and elbow room.

Business Is Matter of Head With Little Heart in Its Affairs—Fay King

By FAY KING

Business girls may be divided into two groups.

Those who devote their lives to a business career, and those who go to business until marriage.

The first group do not enter business with the intention of never marrying.

But they soon become so imbued with the interests and loyalty to the firm, they fail to see, or refuse to accept a good offer of marriage while they are young and attractive.

Some announcing their intention to marry are so influenced by the distress and arguments of the firm they decide to remain.

But, alas, the firm is not always so loyal later on and they find themselves suddenly replaced by younger girls.

Business is a matter of head. Little heart enters into its affairs.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Children Happy on Christmas Morning.

"Oh-h. Rod! Look!"

As Jim pulled the switch which turned on the lights of the Christmas tree, Junior grabbed his cousin by the hand and the two youngsters ran two or three steps into the living room, then stopped, and eyed the tree from the star of Bethlehem at the top to the mound of artificial snow around it. There was rapturous approval in their eyes, and in Junior's voice there was another note, that of triumph, as he declaimed:

"What did I tell you, Rod. Didn't I tell you it would be a sniffer? Oh! Mums!" He threw himself on me and gave me an ecstatic hug. "It's the best one ever. Now, where's my chair? You know what I told you, Rod. We've each got a chair with our presents on it."

"Just a second, sweetheart." I held him back from a rush in search of his chair, because not even for the pleasure of witnessing his surprise at the basement playroom would I let him be disappointed even for a minute at the paucity of gifts in his chair. "You and Roderick and Hank and Bill will find only a few things in your chairs because most of your things are downstairs in the basement. Shall we go down there first?"

"You bet," Roderick said emphatically, but Junior looked troubled.

"You won't look at my presents for everybody till I come back up, will you?" he asked anxiously.

"No, dear," I answered with a tender smile at the remembrance of the loving care with which Junior buys and wraps his small gifts for every member of the family, and his delight in watching us open them.

"Then let's go down stairs. We can come back and look at the things here afterward."

We all trooped down with them, even Katie and Jim, Katie whispering to me, that she "had eferything going goot for breakfast."

Then the little boys went wild with delight and astonishment. Roderick and Junior were like little monkeys, running from one thing to another, exclaiming and asking innumerable questions of Dicky, who kept close to them. But William and Henry stood stock still for a minute, looking from the work benches to the pool tables, from the miniature boxing ring to the corner set apart for a "gym" with punching bags, a goal for shooting baskets and horizontal bars. The platform with its curtain suggesting all sorts of amateur performances was near the fireplace which held a blazing log fire, and had comfortable chairs and a reading table near it, while on either side of the grate bookshelves were ranged, filled with books from Junior's own library, and others which we fancied William and Henry might like.

"Gee!" Henry said at last, all his soul in the monosyllable. "Gee!"

"And that's why Mr. Ticer wouldn't let us come near!" William said comprehendingly. "Look, Hank, there's a big pool table and a little one. The little one's for the kids, of course, but the big one—"

"The big one is for you two boys first of all," I told them, "as are the big work benches. When you're not busy with the tables, the rest of us may play on them, but they belong first to you."

"Gee!" It was William now who spoke. "Oh! boy, what a Christmas! Thank you!"

"Thank you," Henry echoed, and there was an expression in each pair of boyish eyes which caught at my throat and which told me that I would have no trouble in "managing" Henry and William for the rest of their sojourn with us.

I saw Marion whisper to her mother, and then run upstairs. When she came down she held two parcels of identical size and holiday wrappings.

"Look here, everybody," she caroled. "We youngsters have never seen this, but Mums says these two always used to do this and it's loads of fun."

Harry and Dicky each took one of the boxes she held out to them, and then began a bowing and scraping and gesturing which brought howls of appreciative laughter from Roderick and Junior, and grins to the other faces.

"It gives me great pleasure to present you this slight token of my esteem," Dicky intoned.

"I am offering you this paltry present with the wish that it were a million times more," Harry Underwood rejoined. Then they opened their parcels, disclosing boxes of cigars of the same brand and quality, and immediately lighted cigars from them and bestowed others upon my father and Noel.

Shortly we visited the kitchen, and soon one of Katie's famous Christmas breakfasts was on the table. But only the grownups did justice to it. The boys were far too excited to eat anything except what I insisted upon their swallowing and Dicky was impatient of even that discipline.

"They'll get hungry enough after awhile," he said, "let them go."

There was something odd in his voice as he watched them depart, Junior with his arm thrown boyishly and awkwardly over Roderick's shoulder, and as they reached the door he called suddenly:

"Having a good time, son?"

Junior halted, looked around, then as galvanized by a sudden thought, he turned and pulling Roderick with him, ran back to us.

"I'm having the best time I ever had," he said, "and it's all because I've got somebody to play with. Can't Rod stay here always, and be my brother?"

"We'll see," Dicky said astoundingly, "run away now and play."

I looked at him, amazed. It was not like him to make a promise to his small son which he knew he could not keep. But he gave me a signal to come into another room with him, and when we had reached the library he drew a letter from his pocket and handed it to me.

"Read that," he said. "It's from Harriet."

Parchment Shades

If you wish to take the soil from the parchment lamp shades, perhaps the best way to do it is to dip a wool cloth into cold water and wring it fairly dry. Moisten with a little linseed oil and rub over the shade. Repeat until all the dust is removed. Then rub shade with a dry woolen cloth. If your shades are looking a bit shabby why not give them a coat of white shellac? It will rejuvenate them wonderfully.

Scrap Baskets

Scrap baskets come for every room in the house and it is poor taste to mix them up. The painted tin, washable ones belong in the kitchen and children's play room. There are very dainty ones with appliqued flowers that belong in the bedrooms and dressing-rooms, while the living room baskets are of heavy reeds and materials that add dignity to the room they grace.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Some Facts About "Jake" Paralysis.

The United States Public Health Service announces that cases of Jamaica ginger paralysis are still present in this country. This is no laughing matter. This paralysis is indeed a serious condition and I want to warn all my readers to guard against its dangers.

Dr. Copeland

Some time ago various vague ailments of a serious nature were traced to the use of Jamaica ginger. At first it was believed to be due to impure ginger, but later it was attributed to a harmful stubstitute for ginger.

In the manufacture of certain brands of so-called Jamaica ginger extracts, it has been found that certain substitutes were used. The resulting product is similar in composition to the chemicals used in the manufacture of varnishes, shellacs and like preparations.

It is not astounding that the consumption of such a vile concoction would produce paralysis of the body. Official action has been taken to prevent this evil practice. Vendors of such "ginger" extracts are being prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Unfortunately, irresponsible makers of so-called ginger extracts have flooded the market with the product. Though vigorous steps have been taken against a recurrence of this peril, there still remains a great danger to the public, because this substance is still on the market, hidden away in obscure drug establishments.

Make sure you get real Jamaica ginger extract, put up by reliable firms and sold by reputable druggists. This menace to the public welfare is now undergoing careful study by the United States Public Health Service. The watchful eye of this great service is turned upon this evil. From time to time, official statements in reference to the matter will be issued by the United States government.

A Good Listener

Don't be the sort of a housewife who can never be told anything. Modern times bring modern methods and if you adapt yourself to them you will be pleasantly surprised a great many times at the increased speed with which you will work. Be ready to try the household hint, don't distrust it because your mother did not do her work in just the same way.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Eyelashes are constantly moulting. An eyelash lives for only a few months. Application of witch hazel will promote thicker growth.

A shoe should be snug at the heel and over the instep. It is the tight toe, or the shoe that permits the toes to press too far forward, that creates a multitude of foot ills—ingrowing nails, corns, hammer toes, bunions. Ample breadth of shoe is necessary for comfort.

A cold compress will help restore a fiddle-string neck—rejuvenate it. Wring a washcloth out of ice-cold water, place snugly around the neck, covering with a dry towel. In 10 minutes the flesh will feel warm and glowing, proof that blood streams have been stimulated. Before putting on the compress, stroke the neck with flattened palms that have been spread over thickly with a good massage emollient.

Here's consolidation for the woman who has not been treated kindly by old Popper Time. It is to the effect that mirrors are old meanies. They exaggerate defects. Puffs under the eyes, wrinkles, frowns look worse in the looking glass than they do to the eye of the beholder. If you don't want to be comforted and don't believe this, glance at a soiled spot in blouse or frock, then note the reflection in the mirror. Ten times worse! There are mirrors that are particularly spiteful. Keep clear of them.

A cowlick, about which some girls complain, is the beginning of waveline. There's many a straight-haired dolly who, with water waves properly placed, cultivates the semblance of an undulation. Clever marcel waves are able to see lines that are apparently invisible. By following them they produce marcels that have lasting qualities.

Light-colored garments are not a happy choice for the heavyweights. They have an unkindly way of revealing bulk. In a dark colored robe the plumb one produces no definite silhouette; her figure shadows into her surroundings. In light clothes, the anatomical outline stands out like a cameo on a dark surface. Note the difference in appearance when fatted calves are in white stockings or in black. Black stockings, by the way, are getting their innings once again.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

No, Sir! The Rule Hasn't Changed

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A few of us have had quite a warm argument as to whether it is proper or improper to eat chicken without a fork. That is, is it proper to eat it holding it in your hands or fingers. If it is not proper, why do they serve a chicken leg with a wrapping of paper, as though it were to be eaten with the fingers? Has the rule changed lately, that is, in the last year.

JOHN.

No, sir, the rule hasn't changed a bit. Careful eaters never take in their fingers food that can be eaten with a fork or with a knife and fork. And the reason is—obvious, if you have watched a person opposite you eating a chicken bone or anything else messy, in the fingers.

The fact that there is a paper collar on the leg of the chicken or on a chop has nothing to do with a suggestion that we hold either by the paper collar. The collar is sometimes placed on the piece of chicken or on the chop to conceal the end of the bone.

More in the Way Than In Service

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please let me know if it is proper to use lay (service) plates when giving an afternoon tea or rather more than a tea?

READER.

Service plates are too large for this sort of service, and I think that you would find them more in the way than of service. Service plates are "background" plates, to be used at the places for a formal or near-formal dinner or luncheon, to background the plates of the courses before the main course.

For the tea service, use tea plates, or small plates of a size appropriate and convenient to hold the sandwiches and, later, the small cakes, that are served for tea.

Tea for a New Daughter-in-Law

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I enjoy reading your column and I think you are really doing a worth-while work. There is a question I would like to ask.

I am to have a new daughter-in-law in a month's time, and I want to give a tea for her. Will you please give me a form of invitation and shall I use my calling cards, or what size cards?

The tea is not to be formal, nor very large . . . just introducing the new member of the family to a few friends, in a modest sized house.

READER.

Thank you for your appreciative words.

For such a party it would be excellent form and most convenient for you to send your invitations on your visiting cards.

Above your name you might write:

Honoring Miss Helena Robbins

Tea

Friday, the first of June

Four to seven o'clock.

If your address is not engraved on the card, write the address in the right, lower corner.

Charge It to Profit and Loss

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If a young man loses a girl's ring and the girl wants the ring can she make him replace it or pay her for it?

MISS B.

I dislike to think that she will have to "make" him replace the ring, but if his manners do not extend this far in decency, then she will have to decide between either letting the occurrence drop or being disagreeable about having the ring replaced. As a matter of fact, I suggest, urge even, that faced with such an alternative, she will charge her mistake up to "profit and loss," mostly loss, and let it go at that.

Household Hints

To remove stains from indelible pencils, grease the spots with lard and rub well; then wash them in soap and warm water.

For mildew, moisten stains and rub with soap; cover thickly with finely powdered chalk well pressed in. Lay article in air till nearly dry, and repeat two or three times. Or, soak spots in strong vinegar, saturate with salt and rub well.

If you are unfortunate enough to possess the sort of hands that have a tendency to wrinkle and shrivel after being in water for a length of time, rub them with salt of vinegar well into the skin, and you will find that unpleasant feeling leave and the flesh soften to a fine texture.

When hemming a skirt take a double stitch every so often to make the hem more secure. Then if the hem catches and rips, it won't be a long rip.

Save that large paper bag when the groceries arrive. It will come in most handy when you are looking around for something into which the dust from the vacuum cleaner may be emptied.

To remove ink from a carpet, soak up as much of it as possible with blotting paper. Then saturate the spot with plenty of milk, and after some time, having removed the milk with blotting paper, rub carpet with a clean cloth. Ink stains of long duration in a carpet must be treated with oxalic acid.

"My daughter Donnie is just coming into womanhood. A friend of mine told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped her daughter. Donnie has taken only two bottles and you would hardly know she is the same child. She used to be so cross with the other children but now she feels fine. CIVICS CRUSHED BY DORMONT; GRAYS COP

Some big scores were recorded in the City League last evening. Dormont grabbed off the league lead by crushing the North Side Civics, 25 to 8, as the Homewood entry remained idle. While this free hitting fray was going on, J. L. Thomas was defeating Book Shoe, 10 to 4.

In the C. and I. League, Rieck-McJunkin remained in the running with Reliance by defeating Hornes, 8 to 5. Reliance, playing in the West Penn, won over Linwood, 11 to 7.

Verona and Immaculate Heart tied, 4-4, in the Greater Pittsburgh circuit, while Mus defeated Jenkins, 5-3; North Bessemer blanked Fintex, 2-0, and Iroquois nosed out Whitaker, 7 to 6.

In the Crafton-Ingram Church League, Ingram Presbyterians defeated the Crafton Presbyterians, 8 to 3. Twenty-sixth Warders won over the Wilsons, 1-0, in the North Side League, and Fineview trimmed St. Anthonys, 14 to 3.

The Monon Valley League witnessed the downfall of the league-leading Smithton club, Charleroi's Robins winning, 8 to 4. DeMore defeated Printers, 11-10, and Jena Club downed Lineys, 3-2, in the North-South loop. McGraths took Williams, 6-0, in the Central circuit.

Carnegie's All-Stars were no match for the Homestead Grays, the Negro stars winning, 17 to 1, in an independent fracas. The Homestead Aces defeated W. O. W. in another leading game, 13 to 7.

SCOTTIES TAKE SECOND PLACE

With less than one full game separating the one-two-three clubs in the Middle Atlantic League, the 12-club circuit is enjoying a veritable wow of a pennant chase.

Charleston's Senators, which took the lead Wednesday, held on to their half-game advantage yesterday by defeating Altoona, 5 to 1. Martin kept Altoona's seven hits well scattered.

Scottdale eased into second place, 10 points ahead of the slumping Cumberland Colts, by defeating Huntington in a slugfest, 8 to 6. The Scotties punched out 14 hits.

Cumberland dropped its third game in a row, losing to Fairmont, 5 to 4. Spencer limited the Colts to five hits.

Wheeling Stogies continued their improved play by nosing out Hagerstown, 7 to 6, in a game in which they were outhit, 12 to 10. Both clubs made four errors.

Johnstown put a stop to Beckley's streak, downing the West Virginia entry, 4 to 1, with Roberts hurling a four-hit game, and Clarksburg defeated Charleroi, 6 to 2.

OCTANE RATING 72

BLUE SUNOCO

59

The Average of REGULAR PRICED GASOLINES

(U.S. Bureau of Mines Report, March, 1931)

that BLUE SUNOCO is a high powered, knockless motor fuel...

The Society of Automotive Engineers has already adopted "octane rating" as the method of measuring anti-knock quality in gasoline. The Sun Oil Company gladly accepts this measuring stick—so have many other large refiners.

High up the octane scale stands BLUE SUNOCO—proof positive of the powerful, knockless qualities that make it a motor fuel of undisputed premium quality! Yet it sells at regular gasoline price.

Automotive engineers agree that gasoline over 70 octane rating is essential for modern high compression motors. Premium priced fuels substantiate this fact by having an average octane rating of 73 1/10 (U. S. Bureau of Mines Report, March, 1931).

This premium rating of BLUE SUNOCO, which in and around this city has advisedly been held at 72+, proves it is a high powered, knockless, quality motor fuel . . . yet it sells at regular gas price. You save at least 3c per gallon.

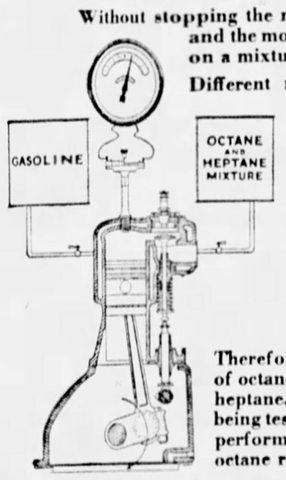
How OCTANE RATING Is Determined

INTO the head of the testing motor is placed the Midgely Bouncing Pin, a scientific instrument which forms an electrical contact when the motor knocks.

The contact caused by the engine knock is at once registered electrically on a dial.

The motor is run on the gasoline whose octane rating is to be measured. The load on the motor is increased until the dial registers knocking.

Without stopping the motor, the gasoline is cut off, and the motor is run, with the same load, on a mixture of octane and heptane.



Different mixtures are tried until the dial again registers knocking. The percentage of octane in the mixture in use at that time is the octane rating of the gasoline.

Octane is a fluid costing $25 a gallon. Running on octane, a motor cannot be made to knock. Heptane is another costly liquid. Using heptane, however, a motor knocks violently.

Therefore, the higher the percentage of octane in the mixture of octane and heptane, which matches the gasoline being tested, the better is the knockless performance and the higher is the octane rating of that gasoline.

Samuel Goldwyn Stays Home And Makes New Discovery On His Own Grounds

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, June 12

Credit Samuel Goldwyn with another discovery.

Deviating from his usual European trips which resulted in stardom for Vilma Banky and Lily Damita, Goldwyn obtained his newest protege from the studio lot.

Wandering through the wardrobe department of the United Artists studio, his eyes fell on Hazel Wilder working behind a sewing machine.

Vilma Banky

The executive asked Miss Wilder if she would like to take a test. The result was that she was assigned to the part, with an option which may lead to a long term contract and featured roles.

Previously more than 2,500 girls had been interviewed by the production to find the 12 most beautiful girls in Hollywood. Eleven had been selected to play in Eddie Cantor's "Palmy Days," and the search was on for the remaining one.

Miss Wilder, who studied art at the University of Nebraska, came to Hollywood three years ago. She has been attending a local school studying costume designing in conjunction with her work in the studio's wardrobe.

FOLLOWING INSTRUCTIONS

From Eddie Cantor comes the story about a man who had been ailing for some time. Finally he sought out a physician. After an examination the doctor informed him that, above all, he would have to be quiet.

"And so," finishes Eddie, "he went into business."

LATEST GOSSIP

It has been decided and okehd by Charles Rogers, Pathe's boss, that George Duryea becomes Tom Keene for his forthcoming series of westerns. What a lot of room for puns this offers. . . . Fred Niblo, Jr., who has been writing on the dialogue of "Street Scene," has been signed to a Paramount contract. . . . Due to freak camera work, Bela Lugosi will appear 8 feet tall in his forthcoming characterization of "Frankenstein." . . . Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, stars of the New York production of "The Guardsman," are scheduled to arrive at M.G.M. today to resume their respective roles in the screen production of the play. . . . The Harold Lloyds will move into their new beach home on the 15th. . . . Excitement reigned on the "Fanny Foley Herself" set in the Hollywood hills yesterday when a rattlesnake made its appearance. Mel Brown, the director, did away with the reptile, which proved to have 12 buttons. . . . Having a few days off between pictures, Richard Arlen and Jobyna Ralston are cruising to Ensenada on their yacht. His next is "No One Man" and co-features Carole Lombard. . . . Tom Buckingham, writer and former director, has been signed by Howard Hughes to complete the direction of the air comedy, "Ground Hogs," which Edward Sedgewick started.

Miss Lange and Ensemble

The String Symphonic Ensemble of Pittsburgh and Marguerite Lange, soprano, gave a very pleasant concert in Carnegie Lecture Hall last night. The increased number in the audience must have been very encouraging to this new organization, and now if we could only find a pleasant garden and good refreshments, with the aid of this ensemble, we might revive the excellent musical entertainments which we used to enjoy on the Schenley lawn.

J. Fred Lissfelt

The backbone of the program was the lovely suite of Pergolesi, but the work of Del Bianco was vigorous and tuneful, while the Zitterbart Scherzo would bear many repetitions. To be sure the ensemble's tone is not yet distinctive, but it has improved since last heard. Del Bianco is an efficient director.

Marguerite Lange has a most attractive voice, best in its brilliant upper register. She is very musical, has a most gracious manner, and chooses to sing excellent music. She was well received, and sang several encores, among them Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me."

Gladys Schade Klaber played accompaniments.

Derby Shown In Newsie

THE GLOBE TROTTER

No less thrilling than the capture of the great English Derby by Cameronian was the presence at Epsom Downs of all of the members of the British royal family and a howling, cheering mob of 500,000 persons. This is shown and described by the Globe Trotter in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, now being shown in leading theaters.

The end of the search for Prof. Piccard, famous Swiss balloonist, and his assistant, Charles Kipfer, who disappeared in the clouds in the Tyrolean Alaps is shown. They had spent a freezing night on the Gurgl glacier, where they had landed.

The West Point cadets in a brilliant commencement march was another enthralling spectacle.

Texas Guinan, clad in her white cowboy suit and accompanied by her "mob" are seen and heard as they arrive in New York from their disastrous trip to France.

There are thrilling pictures of loggers at work in Oregon. Some of the trees that are felled towered 300 feet into the sky.

With medieval pomp, the city of Rouen, France, celebrates the five hundredth anniversary of the martyrdom of Joan of Arc. A pretty French girl takes the part of the Maid of Orleans.

Cadets of the Military College, in Chester, Pa., drive big army tanks over the decrepit flivvers, crushing them into bits of junk.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1931, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Summary

Small need for tears—if one must pay the piper,
Then pay with head held high and willing hand;
One leaves a love affair with judgment riper,
With keener poise—less ready to demand.
I know for one that in the years to follow
The lessons I have learned will come in use,
That rapture is as fleet as Summer swallow—
That glamour is a mockery and ruse.

Ill-fated he who reckons love a vision
Of rainbow's-end with its attendant lures;
Far better he who notes with keen precision
That rapture fades and mockery endures;
That passion is a deep and dark abyss—
And love dies slowly down from kiss to kiss.

Word Juggling

Mr. Heywood Broun, the town's foremost space-filler, is plotting a Broadway revue so that about 100 unemployed actors may live. The aid of your favorite upstart was solicited as if he hasn't enough illwishers. At any rate, things are going along at a swift pace and it looks like a lot of idle players will no longer be at liberty. It will be a co-operative production.

Last night Broun asserted that various wits have been thinking up titles for the new show among them being "All the Cain's Horses," "Customers' Last Stand," "No Worse Than a Compound Fracture" (or a bad cold), "Let Me Tell You About Co-operation."

Mebbe you can top the following suggestions:

P. S. He Got the Job . . . In the Red . . . The Pay's the thing . . . Salary No Objection . . . Home Broun.

Our favorite is "Hams and Yeggs."

Boff! and Bam!

It happened in Mr. Moore's place on 46th Street just before curtain-time the other premiere night. A group of the lads were pro-and-conning each other about this and that. Finally, Master Holtz, the "You Said It" star, snapped at Fred Kaplan, the renowned attorney, in this manner:

"Aw! Wha' do you know about it? If a guy shoots out his brains, and he lives, then he becomes a lawyer!"

"Yeh, yeh," fanged Kaplan, "and if he dies he becomes an actor!"

A Form of Criticism

"And out here in the hinterland," writes an admirer, "Broadway doesn't look like the diamond stickpin on the shirt-front of America, but a gravy stain!"

$ucce$$

Eugenie Leontovich, whose performance in the leading feminine role of "Grand Hotel" is among the things to cheer about, is feeling a little more secure today. All contracts, you probably didn't know till now, via the Equity law, end on June 1.

So Mr. Herman Schumlin, the producer of "Grand Hotel," re-signed his new star this week—the new wage being $1,100 per.

Three years ago she couldn't get a job. Another player, in another show (whose name isn't important for the paragraph), has enjoyed great success here since he came from the Old Country. But he has been misbehaving badly, to the annoyance of his manager, for he often comes to the theater unable to perform. It is said his notices go straight to his head, and that his liquor goes straight to his knees.

A musical play closed down last week because one of the femme principals refused to go on tour. Her argument was that she would be a failure out of New York. It didn't matter to her that nearly 150 persons were thrown out of work.

It's a Dirty Trick, as the locals put it, but it's good Broadway.

And They Hang Pictures!

From Alf Friedman, our Far Rockaway sentinel, comes the one about the ham who was making his debut on the radio. He was plainfully and painfully ill at ease and faced the microphone trembling.

"Is th-th-this a n-n-n-nation-wide h-h-h-hook-up?" he asked the announcer.

"Why?" giggled the announcer.

"Because," was the retort, "I want to know how loud to speak."

The Shop-Talker

From Phil M. Daly comes the one about the ham whose squaw came home unexpectedly and found him entertaining another femme.

"Just tryin' out a new act," he alibied.

"Yeah," snapped the wife as she floored the gal, "an' it's a flop!"

The "new act" picked herself up from the floor and ran out to the street with the wife in hot pursuit.

The ham watched the proceedings from his window.

"Golly!" he golly'd, "thass the first time I ever saw a Flop in for a Long Run!"

Sotto Voice

Lester Patterson, Danny Byrnes, Frank Turano and Mr. Sniffer: So that's what the Bronx looks like?

"Jigger:" I'm afraid it will be over their heads. Come down to our level and oblige.

The Old Phoooffs!

The Books and Authors dep't of the June 7th N. Y. Times had this to report:

"Additional information has come to us from Farrar & Rinehart concerning 'The Columnist Murder' by Lawrence Saunders, which they will publish June 25. The columnist who is taken for a ride in that book is not Walter Winchell. His name is Tommie Twitchell. Sorry."

I don't like that "Sorry."

Aaaaah

Ruth Roland, who is as lovely as she was when she starred for Kalem movies, is an autograph fiend. Imagine Miss Roland, who probably has been asked for her autograph from Maine to Jersey, asking others for theirs. It is a grand collection of handles she has in her album, at any rate, the loveliest sentiment coming from her husband, Ben Bard.

He inscribed:

"To Ruth—Once my sweetheart. Now my wife—Once my wife, always my sweetheart."

Romance

Leslie Howard and Marion Davies put romance into "Five and Ten," Miss Davies' newest starring film, which comes to the Penn next Friday, June 19.

Drama Again Throbs at Montrose

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Montrose Landing, on the Allegheny, again became the center of dramatic activity for the Pittsburgh district last night, when Capt. Menke's Show Boat, the Golden Rod, floating theater extraordinary, all spick and span in fresh white paint, opened a new summer season with the presentation of "The Lure of the City." Capt. Menke has a new company, but the audience is the same. Just a lot of gay folks out for a good time—and having it.

We are glad to inform a tense and excited public that the Captain's company is a whole heap better than the one that appeared here last season. This fact is sort of a crimp on the audience, which finds less opportunity to really let itself loose and whoop it up as of yore. Nevertheless, those present last night entered into the spirit of the occasion and enjoyed themselves. That is, they got enjoyment from their own actions as much as from the acting on the stage.

"Lure of the City" (not a motion picture, according to the program) is one of those plays in which the villain—durn him—persecutes an innocent girl, who is befriended by one of those comic rubes of the gay nineties period and is taken from the dangers of the city to the purity of the country, where she spreads happiness for everybody but the villain—durn him—and is going to marry the minister in the last act.

Between acts are vaudeville. Both the drama and the vaudeville are sort of informal. And both are a lot of fun.

Now to introduce the company! It includes Virginia Dale, leading woman, really an ingenue, who has played even in Youngstown; Robert Graham, Billy Florer, Harry Rollin, Albert Graybill, Blanche Gardner, W. D. McKenzie and Eleanor Brandeau.

You are likely to become real friendly with them before the summer is over.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

New flickdrama comes to the chin-screen today, bringing back shadows of some of the gals and lads we all like to see. Joan Crawford, in "Laughing Sinners," is in the Penn; Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter, in "Daddy Long Legs" in the Stanley; Norman Foster and Carole Lombard, in "Up Pops the Devil," in Fulton and Sheridan Square; Billie Dove and Sidney Blackmer, in "The Lady Who Dared," Davis and Enright. Pick you out a choice piece of celluloid and run it down.

Small Timer, completing a demonstration of his patented double-edged baloney slicer, says he heard of a Scotchman who priced a revolver and then went for a walk on the National Guard rifle range when he was depressed by the depression.

Harry Brown has adjusted his sleep disturber so that it will rout him out early in th' morn of th' morrow. Harry will officiate as the Pittsburgh Grover Whalen when Florenz Ziegfeld and his "Follies" and dollies scram from the choo-choos at the Pennsylvania terminal. For the first time since he was a boy Harry will rub the sand out of his eyes to witness the strange sight of a clock registering a six-thirty of the ante-meridian.

He will give his right hand an extra polish today in preparation for meeting and mitting Gladys Glad. He plans to call that one his Glad-hand hereafter. The first greeting over, he will glove it and then welcome the others with both paws.

Small Timer tried to outguess his wife by "guessing" he'd go out but she in-guessed him by guessing he'd stay in.

SLUMP VIEWED AS TRUST LAW CHANGE AID

Pressure of Depression To Bring Liberalization, War-Time Oil Boss Says

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Financial Service.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The pressure of business depression will quicken the movement to modernize and liberalize the anti-trust laws, according to Mark L. Requa, war-time boss of the oil industry.

Setting forth his conception of a proposed United States Board of Trade, which grew out of his wartime experience, Mr. Requa, mining engineer by profession with headquarters at San Francisco, in a message to this column says:

Mr. Rukeyser

"The theory of this was that it would be composed of men of the highest character, and that the board should be surrounded, as far as possible, with all the dignity that surrounds the Supreme Court of the United States, that to this board would be delegated the same authority that already had been delegated to the Shipping Board under the act creating that board and to the Interstate Commerce Commission under the transportation act of 1920.

"The theory at that time was that all industry might go before the board, plead its cause and, if the board found the proposal was in the public interest, it would give a permit. This license, or permit, would allow the recipient freedom under the Sherman anti-trust law, the Clayton act and other similar laws. The immunity would exist as long as he held the permit. He could surrender it if he did not like it. The government could take it away from him if it found that he was operating unfairly under it and, in fact, the whole theory was one of utmost liquidity."

Though the proposal was not translated into a government policy after the war, Mr. Requa recently recommended that the Federal Oil Conservation Board be organized into such a board.

Mr. Requa informed me:

"It is now about 12 years since I started this agitation. I confess it has made no headway. I did not expect that it would. I early realized that the weight of economic pressure was the only thing that would bring the change about. It seems to me that this pressure is now getting so severe that we may hope for some amelioration."

Westinghouse After Combustion Assets

Informal discussions are being held between Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and bankers interested in International Combustion Engineering Corporation with a view to the purchase by the former of certain assets of Combustion. About a year ago, a few officials of Westinghouse Electric inspected the properties of Combustion, but nothing materialized at that time. In the interim, Foster Wheeler Corporation was actively interested in acquiring the properties, but terms suitable to both interests could not be agreed upon and the plan was abandoned.

MARKET RISES AFTER EARLY REACTION

Rails Sell Off 1 to 3 Points Before Eliminating Losses And Showing Light Gain

NEW YORK, June 12.—(AP.)—The stock market cautiously picked up the thread of the advance today after an early reaction due chiefly to profit-taking on yesterday's late upturn in the rails. Trading was largely professional in character and the turnover was small.

Bonds, with the notable exception of Germans which were still disturbed by uncertainties over conditions in the Reich, showed mostly narrow changes, however, the continued improvement of second grade domestic rails was an important manifestation of returning confidence.

Railroad stocks sold off 1 to 3 points during the first half hour. The promptness with which the group encountered realizing led to some selling of industrials, but when the market had had opportunity to digest the offerings all groups hardened and slowly mended. Declines were eliminated and a narrow advance beyond the Thursday close was begun.

Wall street regarded the freight rate petition agreement as one of the most constructive developments in some time, and believed there would be comparatively little delay in getting action on it in view of the emphasis placed on the emergency nature of the request. A $400,000,000 increase in revenues would be of primary importance in strengthening weakened credit positions, which in turn would find reflection in the bond market, where second grade loans have been unpopular. Protection of railroad bonds is obviously of more fundamental importance than the maintenance of present dividend rates.

The May copper situation bore out earlier estimates that the industry's situation remained unfavorable.

With brokers' loan down $49,000,000 in a rally week on the share market, much of the recent buying was attributed to repurchases by shorts. Some surprise was expressed over the size of the decline, for it had been hoped in many quarters that the cut in margin requirements would have an opposite effect.

Weakness of the German mark, which has gone below the theoretical gold export point, reflects withdrawal of foreign capital from Germany, but there is little expectation here that any metal will be shipped to this country.

The local money market was stagnant. Further easiness is likely over the tax period next week.

Sets Time Limit on Railroad Purchase

Dismisses Order Against Lorillard

TRENTON, June 12.—The New Jersey Supreme Court today dismissed a rule to show cause why the election of directrs of the P. Lorillard Company should not be held invalid. Lack of diligence in prosecuting the case after the rule had been obtained was the reason for dismissal.

Moratorium Not to Affect German Bonds

By GEORGE B. SNYDER

A GERMAN MORATORIUM would not mean that payments on German bonds would be suspended, L. B. de Vlugt, representative of Mendelssohn & Co., the outstanding private banking firm of the Netherlands, told members of the Bond Club of Pittsburgh at their luncheon yesterday.

Of all the parts of the world which are suffering from the business depression Mr. de Vlugt characterized European conditions as the saddest. He declared that England is suffering from a tremendous depression. Germany is in one of the most difficult positions she has ever been in since the war; Italy is doing its best to make ends meet, while Spain is in the grip of revolution.

Mr. de Vlugt expressed the opinion that a moratorium will be necessary for Germany. He declared that the country is suffering the most under the depression with millions unemployed and fearful debts. The German government has to fight the Communists on one side and the Fascists on the other with an empty treasury.

Bond Interests Safe

IN DISCUSSING THE POSSIBLE effects of a moratorium in Germany Mr. de Vlugt said:

"It really means that Germany temporarily stops the payment of war debts, of course, in agreement with the former allied governments. This does not mean that Germany is going to stop payments on the bond issues floated in the United States. This has been said by Dr. Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank, and also by the present German government. We have to separate Germany's war debts and all the other loans. It is a remarkable thing that Germany up to now always has paid its obligations without any default. It is my opinion that German bonds are quoted at present much too low for their real value. But, as I said before, the public seems to be afraid of a moratorium, it believes that Germany will stop its payments on all coupons and nothing is less true. Let us look into this thing a little deeper. If Germany asks for a moratorium it means that she does not want to pay, for a couple of years, the reparation obligations, but not that she wants to stop payments on all other loans.

"What will happen then to the payments from France and England to the United States? Will they also ask for a moratorium? We'll get the answer to this question after the next financial conference, under conditions, of course, that Germany asks for a moratorium."

Russia Menaces the World

RUSSIAN DUMPING OF LOW-PRICED goods is worrying Europe fully as much as America, according to Mr. de Vlugt's summary of the situation. In talking of that he said:

"One of the most mysterious countries in Europe is Russia. At the present time it brings to the whole world, but especially to Europe, a feeling of unrest. By dumping their products on every market, the Communists hope to create disorder in other countries.

"It seems that at least every country in Europe suffers at the moment under the commercial policy of Russia. With their forced labor and their immense natural resources it is easy for them to sell under the market. If Russia is coming with orders for machinery and paying a part of it in cash, every country is willing to execute the Russian orders, because everybody is glad to find an outlet for overproduction. Russia is using our machinery in order to speed up its production and hits us in our own countries with its cheap articles. Some economists believe that granting certain credits to Russia would stop the present dumping system and create a better international atmosphere. Of course such credits should be allowed only if Russia guarantees to stop creating unrest in all noncommunistic countries."

Ramon Commences to Lose Interest in Jenny

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

CHAPTER XXXI.

Even as Gratton Davies stood there, keyed by the slim Jennifer beside him to his facetious worst, Rarick, abominating what was sure to be the flying foam of their conversation, was ready to like him. He had written that message, "I think I understand what you failed to get said to Avery . . ."

"Well, young man," said Rarick, greeting him a little later, "how is the enterprise coming along?"

"Not for the moment, so surely as this one of yours, sir. This building has been headed for its roof ever since you laid the cornerstone. We are not certain yet where we are heading."

"We've just come from a reading rehearsal of one of Gratton's plays, father. Talk about not seeing the woods for the trees! We couldn't hear the lines for the adenoids."

DRAMATIC VENTURE

"That remark, I shall explain to your daughter when I have her alone, Mr. Rarick, was both unesthetic and untrue. The fact is, the cast at the moment doesn't measure up."

"Gratton's polite way of saying, father, that the first thing the committee did after feeling money in its pocket was to go out and buy the most expensive Broadway casting-director they could find, thus launching the experimental idea safely and snugly toward the commercial theater from which is was so passionately revolting when you came across. You should have endowed Gratton, father. Not a half-baked idea."

"Jennifer!"

"Modesty ill becomes you, my young man. You may leave something to be desired as a playwright, but you are as bona fide an idealist as ever let himself in for a bumping. But anyway, I'm for Gratton's play, father. Louder and funnier—more situations and less psychology—is all anyone could have asked of the first rehearsal. Also a new and not quite so comic hat for the leading lady."

"I'd like to come around sometime Mr. Rarick, and talk to you about this baby of yours . . . that is what it is, in a way . . . your money made it possible."

"Are you speaking of me, sir? Father, I think the young man is about to sue for my hand."

"Jennifer, idiot, if your comedy cannot be funnier, let it at least be deferred. I've a notion you'll be interested in seeing first hand, sir, what we are doing with your money. Jennifer isn't entirely correct in what she says; but it does seem that with money in our cash box the committee is about to commit the understandable error of becoming pretentious. I'm for adhering to our pre-affluent repertoire. I would like to talk over our production end with you, sir."

A broad, slow smile moved across the sallow features of Rarick, seeming to widen them, his lips lifted, revealing seldom-revealed white oblongs of teeth, then drew back as slowly as portieres.

"My hours, young man, for conferring advice for the furtherance of our native and esoteric drama are for the present overcrowded, but if you will consult with my Mr. Hellman, he will arrange an appointment."

"Darling," said Jennifer, as they turned away, "I wish to commemorate this occasion by sliding down 79 stories and rushing to the first corner orangeadery for an ade—or a ginfizz. You may not realize it, but you succeeded in eliciting a smile and a witticism from my father."

"I'm for him."

"I'm of him."

"That makes me vicariously for you."

"Viciously, did you say?"

And so on and so on and so on, as, stepping into the elevator they began descent through the stories of steel that were rising to the tunes of the jingling of the dimes.

By an unexplainable oversight that offhand would seem almost impossible, Rarick, what with Hellman rushing off with the newspaper men and the guests paying their departing platitudes, was left on the roof alone after the elevator man had made his last descent and apparently gone from the building.

There were no bells. It meant a walk down thousands of stairs that were little more than ladders. For an hour now, the sun had been in behind banking clouds, the wind stiffening. Meanwhile Rarick waited, hoping for a return of some of the waiters to clear away the few remaining camp chairs, or for a watchman on his rounds.

With the instinct of man to ponder from high places, on a parapet and his cheeks crushed between his palms.

What he was actually contemplating at the moment, as he stood there in the midst of space, in the midst of a Saturday afternoon—his last guest gone, Jenny with her narrow youth, Jennifer with her heckled and heckling companion—was, that here he stood with miles of steps to walk down and no place in particular to go after he had walked them.

One of these hiatuses which, because they occur so seldom in the map of a busy man's affairs, flabbergast.

RAMON CHANGES

Well, here goes!

It was almost dusk when he reached the street, after the 50 and more flights of stairs, mortar streaks along his coat, the dizzying descent and the Saturday afternoon bedlam of shoppers, ferryboat commuters, trucksters, newsboys, clerks, stenographers, brokers, causing the scene to seem to sway by the time he reached sidewalk level.

Contemplating them for at least two hours, Rarick finally dove down into the subway, and home, to write throughout the evening at the document that was slowly becoming his will.

The third day that Jenny's meals, every nine of them, had consistently disagreed, she rather angrily decided to see a specialist.

Jenny could and did truthfully boast that she had never spent a day in bed. Small ailments, such as the sciatic twinge that had come of late, yes. But in the main she was entitled to regard herself as a creature well thewed.

Ramon was growing tired. The symptoms were out in him. The guarded manner. The wary voice. The evading appointment. The placating manner. The roving eye. Slowly, surely, unrelentingly, the realization was closing in on Jenny.

His telephone no longer responded to her call when too well she knew he was lying within reach of it. The old punctiliousness about appointments was a thing of the past. Almost invariably now it was a matter of waiting for him; and on one or two occasions he had failed to appear at all, sending a telephone message, explaining unavoidable delay, by way of the cashier of the tea-room, where already Jenny awaited him.

His tendency to be irritable was growing. He disliked the pink Chinese polish to her finger nails; hated the manner in which she shrouded her throat in furs and tulles, and told her so.

"It makes you look so blamed manufacturedly exotic."

"But, Ramon, you once told me Duse and Bernhardt——"

"Never mind what I once told you. This is now."

"Why, Ramon!" she gasped, tears spurting. "Why—Ramon!"

He had leaned over the table of the tea-room to pat her hand, as you would the hand of some one who innocently irritates you beyond endurance.

"Never mind, dear."

PALLOR OF TERROR

Never mind! Jenny was minding to such a degree that when she laid herself in bed at night, after a day filled with a tormenting attempt to drown out with activities the rising fears about Ramon, the blood kept whirring in her veins and flooding her with flushes.

The boy was tiring, no doubt of that. More-frequent exchange of handclasps that left notes of larger and larger denomination in his palm did not seem to matter, except for the moment.

The pallor of terror was high in the face of Jenny these days; so high that Jennifer, marveling at such a lapse in her mother, reproved her for rouging badly.

"A bit thick, darling."

What was Ramon wanting? The apartment? The retreat to which he used to refer? Her discretion continued to shrink from that. The present suited her so well. Careful. Satisfying. Cautious. Having your cake and, as Ramon repeatedly added these days, eating it, too. But, curiously, even that mooted subject was laid now. Ramon no longer talked in terms of their jewel-box of a rendezvous which was to be of his designing.

Was Ramon's eye straying? The younger girls, including Jennifer, interested him strangely little. Significantly little, the men would have put it. He had appeared at the opera in Mrs. Emanie Bursilap's box of late. But that was unthinkable. Emanie Bursilap was a great-grandmother, and 68 if a day. Rich beyond the count, it is true, but a rather horrible great-grandmother, with a wattled, wrinkled face that had been lifted into a mask, and a neck with grooves for the pearls to nest in.

A naughty old gray bat of a woman, jealous of her own daughters and haunted by terrors of becoming what she already was.

Had the time come when Jenny must face her issues? What issues? It was unthinkable that this outward scheme of things, this scheme of having her cake and eating it, too, could ever be any different until—until what? Until something happened! Well, things did happen. Death changed the maps of families. Women had been left widows before—free—O God, forgive me for that thought—

DAILY SHORT STORY

Mr. Henshaw

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Girl Falls in Love Through Misunderstanding

May Ranson and Viola Johnson came to work for an interior decorating concern just off the avenue at about the same time.

They became friends almost immediately and, each having come from out-of-town, they decided to room together.

Each was an attractive girl, but of different types. Viola was brunette, dashing, vivacious.

May had the softest and glossiest of chestnut brown hair, in great quantities, and deep hazel eyes. While she seldom frowned, she did not smile a great deal. Her expression was one of placid serenity.

May was rather shy with men, although she could talk interior decorating with persuasion and authority.

Viola had a "way" about her that seemed to attract the men.

She had a nephew in the city who was actually a year older than herself. Through him and his mother she met a number of nice young men. And Viola also corresponded, occasionally, with boy friends back home.

Now and then, May was taken out by Viola, but she did not add anything to the gaiety of these parties. Not that she was exactly a wall-flower, but she didn't go in for modern petting and she preferred conversation to idle chatter.

When May and Viola were in their pretty little two-room and kitchenette apartment together May talked quite a lot, but it was about her relatives, or the two trips she had abroad when studying or things of that sort.

Viola chattered away concerning the newest styles, the faddiest cosmetics and, especially, the most entertaining young men.

"Smith was a lovable sort," she would say, "I could have settled down back home as Mrs. Smith, but it didn't seem to appeal. Smith's married now."

Or Viola would say, "Met a chap named Ryerson last night, clever as everything. I like Ryerson."

Viola seemed to dote on using a man's last name.

And always, sandwiched into her conversation, was her mention of Henshaw.

It was Henshaw this and Henshaw that.

She had a picture of herself with him, in a canoe. It was a snapshot and his hat shadowed his face.

"Now Henshaw's one handsome man—we still write to each other, May—he's really a darling."

"Are you going to marry him?"

RECEIVES GIFT

"I don't know—we talked it over a whole lot before I left home, he's a lawyer there and awfully smart. We decided that it would be best to wait for a while and discuss it again. Henshaw's awfully sensible, May, he said I might meet some one in the city I liked better, and that he had to go along another year when his finances would be more suitable to the demands of matrimony.

"I guess it's Henshaw all right, for you, Viola," May said, "you seem to like him best."

"Well, I don't know."

"If you don't—no one does," May would laugh.

Viola received a handsome bracelet.

"Henshaw sent it—isn't it a darling?" Viola cried, showing it to May.

"And he wrote the sweetest letter."

But Viola did not show the letter.

Now and then Viola would scold May a little.

"My goodness, May—how do you ever expect to get married if you act so shy? The boys won't hurt you. You have to get acquainted, you know."

"Well, I won't worry, dear," May answered. "When the right man comes along, we'll both know it."

"Old fashioned girl—all out of date, Mr. Right man doesn't come galloping up to a girl and cry, 'At last, we have met!'"

"I'm not worrying."

"But don't be a sil, May—a girl these days has to look about, the day is past when a girl is supposed to sit in a corner until some man chances along who fancies her. You've got to mix, honey, and be jolly and meet a lot of men. That's the only way you'll make a good match."

May would talk straight business, and talk convincingly, and that would be that. She was extremely successful in convincing these wealthy people that they needed entirely new interior decorations.

CLEVER WOMAN

Viola was also clever, but aside from her business acumen she always interested the men clients. It was her charming and vivacious way.

"That rich Rodney Garson," she told May, "was awfully nice to me—we had a gay little luncheon together and I got a swell contract with him. He tried to date me up."

"Well, he has money enough," May reminded her.

"I wouldn't swap him for my Henshaw!" Viola cried.

May smiled and gave her a hug.

"I suspected that it was Henshaw, all the time. I guess you've learned to know your own heart," said May.

Viola had several letters, as usual. She cast her eyes over the envelopes, tossed two aside and ripped open the other one.

"Good, it's from Henshaw!" she cried, before getting it open.

A hasty glance while May was calmly putting her hat away in the closet and Viola shouted and pranced around the room.

"He's coming! He's coming to New York and going to see me!" she shouted.

May went over and hugged her.

"That's means I'll soon have to live alone."

Viola read. She re-read.

"Well, I—I guess it does—he wants to talk over everything—he's been retained by a couple big corporations and we can afford the handsome house back home we wanted and everything—"

MAY AGREES

On the day that Viola's Henshaw was to arrive she rushed to May in consternation.

"Of all the terrible luck—I've got to go out to Great Neck to look at the Dowell place and I won't get back until 6 and Henshaw's coming at noon!"

"It's only a few hours, Viola," May tried to comfort her.

"But I've written and promised to meet him at the Commodore at 1 o'clock and he's on the train now—Oh, darn! I'd throw down this job only I want to work a little longer to get money for my trousseau."

"Leave a note for him, dear."

"Some stupid might forget to deliver it, and I don't know whether he's going to register or just meet me. Oh, May, you will have to go there and meet him for me and explain."

"But I don't know him."

"Page him, have luncheon with him, take him up to the apartment and wait and I'll come rushing back at 6. Please, you must do that for me."

So May agreed.

Shortly after 1 o'clock she was having a page boy going the rounds shouting "Mr. Henshaw! Mr. Henshaw!"

Almost in no time at all a handsome man was ushered over to May by the boy.

"Mr. Henshaw?"

"I am Miss Ranson," May said, "and Viola sent me to meet you; she couldn't get here."

"Viola couldn't get here? And she sent you to meet me? Well, this is a surprise, Miss Ranson."

"Viola couldn't help it," and May explained. She added, "She has been so happy since she knew you were coming. I've heard an awful lot about you from Viola, Mr. Henshaw, she's always talking about you—and she's a darling girl."

"Um-m-m," said Mr. Henshaw, smiling at May, "Viola may be all of that, but she certainly sent a most—er—charming emissary."

"She told me about your being retained by two big corporations—it's splendid, for both of you," May said, hastily.

WRONG MAN

Mr. Henshaw took her out to luncheon. They ate and they dance and May fell heels over head in love and was heartbroken. She talked a lot about Viola, but Mr. Henshaw said nothing at all about her, which annoyed May. He said many charming things to May about herself. It was 5 o'clock when May took him to their apartment.

"I suppose Viola sent you a photograph of herself like this?" May said, showing it.

"So—this is Viola," Mr. Henshaw murmured.

And then Viola burst into the room.

She rushed up to Mr. Henshaw, cried "Darling!" and then screamed.

"May—where's Henshaw? Who is this man?"

"Mr. Henshaw—as if you didn't know," May answered.

"Mr. Robert Henshaw—so this is Viola?" he cried.

"Are you crazy, May? I wanted you to meet Henry Shaw—I never saw this man—"

"But you always called him Henshaw."

"Hen Shaw—Oh, I must rush to the Commodore—"

"I'll locate him by telephone," said Mr. Henshaw. He did. Mr. Henry Shaw came right over and took Viola out. Mr. Henshaw took May out. A nice time was had by all. It looks like double wedding bells.

Stop, Look, Listen!

People Will Hold to Account Any Political Party Responsible for Retrogression of Navy.

National economy is a virtue, and in times of falling revenues, it is more than a virtue.

It becomes a duty, but a duty that should be performed with JUDGMENT and DISCRIMINATION.

The country has heard with surprise and misgiving that vital expenditures for the upkeep of the Navy are threatened with severe curtailment.

The plan for curbing expenses even goes to the length of reducing the number of cadets at Annapolis—that incomparable school of patriotism and trained efficiency.

It is time for the administration to STOP, LOOK and LISTEN.

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE ARE PROUD OF THEIR NAVY. They delight to recall its exploits and its honorable history.

They believe it is a great instrument of PEACE, DEFENSE, SECURITY and NATIONAL DIGNITY.

They will hold to strict account any political party which starves or skimps it or is responsible for its retrogression in any respect.

THERE IS A STRONG NATIONAL SENTIMENT ABOUT THE NAVY. SENTIMENT IS A DANGEROUS THING TO AFFRONT OR DISREGARD.

New Aviation Route

Airway No. 10, Between Pittsburgh and Erie, Will Fill An Important Need.

Developments in aviation are coming so rapidly in the Pittsburgh district that it is necessary to stay alert to keep abreast of them.

Just a few days ago a new airplane service to Washington was inaugurated.

Now comes the announcement that Airway No. 10, between Pittsburgh and Erie, is nearing completion. Ten beacons on the route—eight established by the State Aeronautics Commission and two by the lighthouse division of the Department of Commerce—will be in operation within a few weeks.

The new route will be useful for quick trips in Western Pennsylvania. But it will serve other purposes as well.

It will be the only north and south route across the state connecting with the transcontinental airways and will enable eastbound airplanes to take their choice of four routes across the Allegheny Mountains.

The new route will also have military importance.

The arrival at Bettis Field yesterday of three Pittsburghers 17 hours after leaving Los Angeles gave fresh proof of the superiority of air transportation. The actual flying time was only 14 hours.

That we may fully avail ourselves of it, new airways must be established in every direction.

Rural Education

That Improvement of Schools Pays Is Proved By Increase In Enrollment.

The State Department of Public Instruction reports that enrollment figures in Pennsylvania's rural schools during the school year just ended show an increased holding power of five per cent, the highest in the history of the state.

The year was marked by improvement in rural school architecture and schoolhouse grounds.

It was no mere coincidence that enrollment increased as the buildings and premises were improved; it was a case of cause and effect.

Nearly all the new rural schools are of the one-story type and of attractive architecture. Many have gymnasiums, and are community centers.

Such buildings are an asset in themselves, for their esthetic value.

The main reason, however, for making schools attractive is to promote education. The enrollment figures prove that the work being done on rural schools is having that effect.

A Judicial Referendum

It Will Be Helpful to the Voters to Know Whom the Lawyers Would Like to See on the Bench.

The decision of the Allegheny County Bar Association to conduct a referendum among its membership to determine whom the lawyers favor for the seven places soon to be filled on the bench of Common Pleas Court is welcome.

The attorneys' choice may not necessarily be the best. Nevertheless they know better than any other class of citizens the qualifications of the candidates for the judiciary and the qualities that judges should possess. The voters will be glad to know their preferences.

The seven Common Pleas judges whose terms expire soon are appealing jointly for another term—an undesirable procedure, as the Sun-Telegraph has pointed out, because candidates should be considered for their individual merits and not for their affiliations with other candidates.

Hard to Exaggerate

Whisky Played an Important Part in the Life of the Early Settlers.

Selection of a history textbook for the public schools of Franklin, Pa., has been held up by the discovery that the book that had been recommended for adoption discussed the drinking habits of the early settlers in this country. One of the school directors has complained that the part that alcohol played in their lives has been over-emphasized.

To exaggerate the importance of whisky in Colonial times would not be easy. It was especially important in Western Pennsylvania. Distilling was one of our most important industries, and the fame of Monongahela rye has persisted to this day. No description of Colonial life would be faithful that failed to give adequate consideration to the settlers' interest in strong drink.

And no history of the United States would be complete which glossed over the fact that in 1791 the people of Western Pennsylvania rose in insurrection against the Federal government's whisky tax—an insurrection so formidable that President Washington called out an army of 15,000 troops to quell it.

Put That Giant at Work!

(Copyright, 1931.)

Official inaction at Washington blocks the paths that lead to prosperity, as Cartoonist McCay so graphically pictures above.

William Randolph Hearst said: "Five billion dollars promptly spent in the employment of labor would promptly restore prosperity.

"There is plenty of money in the country, plenty of money in the savings banks, and the people have as much confidence in Government securities as they have in the savings banks."

President Hoover should recommend and Congress should pass the Five Billion Dollar Prosperity Loan.

Why doesn't official Washington act to put at work the Giant shown in the McCay cartoon?

First Comes Will Power

Will Governs Men and Governs Its Possessor.

MUSSOLINI AND KEMAL PASHA, WITH ONE EXCEPTION EUROPE'S MOST POWERFUL RULERS. STUDY THEIR FACES.

These pictures prove the power of WILL, and the fact that a determined individual, even in these days of flying machines, rapid fire guns and poison gas, is the greatest power on earth.

One of these men, as you know, rules Italy. His word is law, and he defies every power that seeks to overrule his will.

The other, Kemal Pasha, rules the great empire of Turkey. He has overthrown the Turkish Sultans, has tossed aside the pretended successor of Mohammed, head of the Moslem religion, and, to a large extent, he has tossed aside Mohammed's religion, and the public's respect for it.

He has torn the veil from the faces of women, and the fez from the heads of men.

In Italy, the law is the "word of Mussolini," and Turkey's law is the "will of Kemal Pasha."

The masses of men are more or less like sheep, and when somebody comes willing, and determined, to DRIVE THEM, they move like sheep, obediently.

We believe that men are civilized, and have self-governing ability. We forget that we are only 12,000 years from the late Stone Age, living actually in the early infancy of the human race, a race that is destined to last hundreds of millions of years more.

An exhibitor of trained dogs cracks his whip and the dogs jump through the hoop. The ruler of subservient human beings cracks his whip, and the humans obey the will stronger than their own.

There is one will in Europe as strong as that of either of these two men, STRONGER perhaps, and that is the will of STALIN, dictator and absolute ruler of Russia.

What he THINKS, Russia does, and what he ORDERS, Russia obeys.

What will happen to Italy when Mussolini goes, to Turkey when Kamel goes, to Russia when Stalin goes?

Those questions time will answer.

A child that learns to walk is better than one that must be carried, even though it walks feebly and falls down occasionally.

A nation that learns to govern itself is better than one that must obey without question the will of an individual.

But before we become too proud of our "self-government" we should answer this question:

How much do we govern ourselves, how much do organized corporations and money govern us?

Gilbert Theory of Earth's Magnetism

By Archibald Henderson

During the sixteenth century it required splendid courage to be a scientist, in the sense in which that term is employed today. The system of instruction, the entire curriculum, was dominated by Aristotelian influence. What Aristotle said went. If he had recorded nothing about a certain subject there was little use in studying it. Authority dominated the field of instruction. The laboratory and the experimental method were virtually unknown, although here and there were obscure scientific workers and little workshops which might, by exaggeration, be termed laboratories.

A noted figure who deserves the recognition of posterity for his modern attitude toward scientific inquiry and his elaborate investigations, is William Gilbert. He was born at Colchester in 1544, the son of a very respectable burgess of the town, who eventually became city recorder. William must have had a good preparatory training, for at 18 he became a student at St. John's College, Cambridge. He demonstrated his ability as a scholar, becoming at the age of 21 a fellow and examiner in mathematics. Being of an adventurous nature, and preferring a more active life, he studied medicine and took his M. D. at the age of 29. The next three years he devoted to foreign travel.

Returning to England in 1573, he settled down to the practice of medicine in London. In a comparatively short while he won high repute as a medical practitioner. In the course of time he was elected president of the College of Physicians and became the personal physician of both Queen Elizabeth and King James I. He was no doubt an excellent physician; but it is most likely that his great repute as a scientist enhanced his fame as a physician.

At William Gilbert's home, near St. Paul's Cathedral, there met a group of savants which he had organized. It was a genuine society of philosophers, believed to have been one of the first of its kind in Europe. At his home Gilbert had his laboratory, and here he conducted those experiments in chemistry, electrical and magnetism, which procured him prodigious fame.

At that time the most fantastic superstitions prevailed regarding the subjects of magnetism. People supposed, for example, that in the Arctic regions was located an island or mountain of magnetic ore, toward which the magnetic needle pointed. It was even said, and doubtless believed by many, that when a ship approached this island, all the bolts and nails which held the timbers together flew out, and the vessel fell in pieces!

Credit of the highest character should go to Gilbert for rescuing the subject of the magnet from the realm of fantasy and placing it squarely within the field of science. He was an acquaintance, for example, of that great sailor and navigator, Sir Francis Drake, who supplied him with much accurate information regarding the behavior of the magnetic needle.

It was Gilbert who advanced the correct theory, namely, that the earth itself was a great magnet. This theory he succeeded in demonstrating. From a study of the electrical properties of bodies he was able to prove that there were many materials besides amber and jet which could be electrified by friction. This he demonstrated by means of an electroscope of his own manufacture. To Gilbert we owe the word electricity, which he in turn derived, in the form "electricitas," from "elektron," the Greek word from amber.

Gilbert's chief scientific discoveries were embodied in his book, "De Magnete," dealing with the subject of magnets and magnetism. To Gilbert Galileo wrote: "I extremely admire and envy the author of 'De Magnete.' I think him worthy of the greatest praise for the many new and true observations which he has made, to the disgrace of so many vain and fabling authors, who wrote not from their own knowledge only, but repeat everything they hear from the foolish and vulgar, without attempting to satisfy themselves of the same by experience."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Every mail brings more of them . . . letters from young women asking why a girl "hasn't as good a right to sow her wild oats as a man."

Not an amazing question. Women were bound to ask that question as soon as they were able to pay their own way and dictate their own terms in life. And they certainly produce some pretty strong evidence to back it up.

"'Wild oats,'" asserts Sara, the super-secretary, "certainly do not hurt a woman's working efficiency any more than they do a man's. I have had a position for the last six years in a large law firm. I'm now earning $75 per week and I am as interested in my work and as capable of handling it as any man here. Yet, I confess frankly, I believe that a girl should see life before she marries. And I am practicing what I preach.

"And as far as general decency goes, I'd choose a 'bad' woman' every time, when it comes to generosity, tolerance, kindness, loyalty and fairness. It is the good woman, who knows nothing of life, who is usually the poor sport, the vicious gossip. The girl who knows what it's all about makes a much more understanding and amusing companion for a man. Moreover, she stays young longer and has a lot more fun."

All of which is largely true. No use denying it. No use denying, either, that in the face of these painfully obvious facts, more girls are sowing more wild oats every week-end party.

YET WILD OATS ARE AS BAD FOR GIRLS AS THEY EVER WERE. Single standards notwithstanding, they do something to a woman which they don't do to a man . . . something that, nine times out of ten, demoralizes her whole life.

THEY FIX IN HER THE HABIT OF RESTLESSNESS.

Now this might not be a serious handicap if she intended to spend the rest of her years skilhooting around as a bachelor business-girl. But not one woman out of a million has any such intention. The majority of females are still as bent on marriage as were their great, great, great grandmas. Moreover, they expect a great deal of happiness out of marriage. But what's the Gay Girl's chance of happiness in marriage, after she has "conditioned" herself to a program of thrills?

Marriage was established on the premise that ladies would stay put and, in return, receive the satisfaction of protection and respect. But suppose "staying put" has become a pain in the neck... and protection is the last thing she wants? Suppose she actually craves risk and change and her charm and good nature are based on these conditions—then what?

WILL THE GIRL WHO HAS LIVED AND LOVED ALL OVER THE LOT BE CONTENT TO SETTLE DOWN IN THE SAME OLD ROOMS WITH THE SAME OLD FACE AND DO THE SAME THINGS YEAR AFTER YEAR?

"But men do it!" protests Sara. "They sow their wild oats and then they settle down. Their restlessness doesn't spoil marriage for them—"

No—because they still have an outlet for it . . . they still have the ADVENTURE OR WORK. And a good job is more thrilling than a dozen gay girls to the average mature man. When his wild oats days are over, he can still work off steam by outbidding Smith & Jones on that bridge job. The job is both adventure and stabilizer to a man.

But women don't feel that way about jobs. Romance is the woman's great adventure. And when Romance fails to yield the thrills to which she has become accustomed . . . when it settles down into the hum-drum of matrimony . . . what next?

Go out and look 'em over in Reno. That's what's next.

Happy the man when he has not the defects of his qualities.—Dupanloup.

Valor, gradually overpowered by the delicious poison of sloth, grows torpid.—Italicus.

He is great who is what he is from nature, and who never reminds us of others.—Emerson.

A man is never astonished or ashamed that he doesn't know what another does, but he is surprised at the gross ignorance of the other in not knowing what he does.—Halliburton.

There is never any real danger in allowing a pedestal for a hero. He never has time to sit on it. One sees him always over and over again kicking his pedestal out from under him and using it to batter the world with.—Lee.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Day's End

This is enough; to come at long day's end
Once more back to the cottage where you dwell;
To see the poplar waving like a friend,
To hear the linnet piping: "All is well!"
For this I labor daily, hour by hour,
That with the dusk I may ascend this street
To see in your blue eyes love flame and flower,
To hear love throbbing in your accents sweet.

This is enough: what more could heart desire
Than this, a refuge so serene and sure
That, though all other loves grow cold or tire,
Your love, unchanging, steadfast, will endure?
Ah, at day's end to leave the strife, the roar,
And find peace waiting just within your door!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 12.—Thoughts while strolling: Everybody hitting it off for the beaches. But that doesn't compare to the cool of the evening at the old swimmin' hole. Always a smart looking flapper drifting out of the Plaza. Katherine Brush, an East Liverpool (O.) girl, who made good in the city.

Bud Fisher and Mayor Walker look alike. Arthur Hopkins has the ruddiest cheeks in town. And Carl Van Vechten the bluest eyes. The clerks in Tuxedos at the Sherry-Netherland. Helen Gould's home is treated to a sandblasting. And it is about time Frisco bills himself as Mr. Joe Frisco.

The cloying odor of the subway in the rush down town. And welcome fresh winds from the harbor alighting at Bowling Green. Lillian Russell once boasted she never rode in the subway. Excursion steamers festooned for all day picnics. And tooting tugs guiding big liners.

A big red fire boat ready to shoot out to sea. Fishing smacks from Boston. Whistling echoes tossed back by the sky scrapers. Wall Street—there's an unholy mess. Touts for passport photo parlors. A flash of swift-veined heat lightning in a cloudless sky.

Immigrants in forlorn huddles. Carrying shawled bundles. And moving with the lethargy of driven sheep. But in a few years they will be thoroughly American. Smart cracking on Broadway corners. Concession stands strung with cast iron souvenirs. Whatever became of Hans Lobert?

Lunchers in St. Paul and Trinity graveyards. Steady streams whirling through revolving doors. Battery Park never changes. The solemn manner of seamen off duty. The lower Broadway hurrah. Life at full stream. Eddies. Cross currents. Deep channels. Somebody better be doing something about business.

Leaving the Capitol Theater the other evening I missed a glove. I spoke of it only to my wife in departing through the lobby. This morning it arrived by special delivery. And if that isn't magic you do one of your tricks.

An actor at the Capitol, incidentally, knew audience psychology. After doing his bit he suddenly exclaimed: "My wife happens to be watching me from the wings today. She is an old trouper herself. Like to meet her?" Applause. "Now," he said to her, "if you make good with these folks I'm going to buy that dress you admired around the corner." And helping her get that dress is probably how I lost my glove. Lot of country jakes in New York.

New York law firms are celebrated for long names. Such as Marks, Holinger, Marks, Hickson & Marks. Ring Lardner travestied the idea hilariously in his "June Moon." A young attorney called on his client and announced: "I am from the law firm of Devlin, Devlin, Devlin & Stuart." The client thought a second and inquired: "How'd Stuart get in? Marry one of the Devlin girls?"

In our town we had what we called Lawyers' Row, a shabby mixture of brick and darkly timbered houses across from the Court House. Local legal luminaries spent much of their time sunning themselves on little front porches, gossiping among themselves and with passersby. The older ones wore wide black hats and string bow ties. As "the" reporter on the local daily, these disciples of Blackstone were a perpetual fount of copy for the "Personal Jottings" column.

One of the favorite fillers was to chronicle the comings and goings. Thus: "Mr. Alfred Resener was a Sunday visitor from Cheshire." I notice that today the formula is changed. The same item would read: "Mr. Alfred Resener was a bus passenger from Cheshire Sunday."

Harry, the butler, tip toes in to whisper two ladies unannounced are in the reception hall. "They's sho' pretty," he said and added: "What shall I do?" I am not up in butlering. But I know what I'm going to do. Right now I'm pulling down my vest, wiping the egg off my chin and sticking up my hair. I'm not such an antique.
